

The Burning Bush

ISSN 0219-015X

January 2001

Volume 7 Number 1

BOB JONES UNIVERSITY AND THE KJV: A CRITIQUE OF FROM THE MIND OF GOD TO THE MIND OF MAN	1
Jeffrey Khoo
DEATH IN THE POT!	35
Timothy Tow
GOSPEL STRATEGY FOR THE NEW MILLENNIUM	38
S H Tow
BIBLICAL MOTHERHOOD (I): THE ROLE OF CHRISTIAN WOMEN IN CONTEMPORARY SINGAPORE SOCIETY	46
Carol Lee
HOW GOD LED A CHINESE GIRL THROUGH INDONESIA'S RIOTING	58
Linda Liejardi
College News	61
Class Notes	62

THE BURNING BUSH

Theological Journal of the
FAR EASTERN BIBLE COLLEGE

Edited for the Faculty

Rev Timothy Tow, MDiv, STM, DD
Principal, and Lecturer in Systematic Theology

Mrs Ivy Tow, BTh
Matron, and Lecturer in Greek

Rev Bob Phee, BA (Hons), BTh, MDiv, ThM, DMin
Registrar, and Lecturer in Apologetics

Rev Jeffrey Khoo, BTh, MDiv, STM, PhD
Academic Dean, and Lecturer in New Testament

Rev Goh Seng Fong, MA, MDiv, DMin
Dean of Students, and Lecturer in Pastoral Ministry

Rev Koa Keng Woo, BTh
Lecturer in Bible Geography and Church Music

Rev Quek Suan Yew, BArch, BTh, MDiv, STM
Lecturer in Old Testament

Rev Stephen Khoo, BTh, MDiv, MA
Lecturer in Biblical Studies

Rev Prabhudas Koshy, BSc, BTh, MDiv, ThM (c)
Lecturer in Hebrew

Rev Jack Sin, BA, MDiv, ThM (c)
Lecturer in Church History

Rev Colin Wong, BTh, MDiv, ThM
Lecturer in Pastoral Ministry

Rev Charles Seet, BTh, MDiv
Lecturer in Biblical Studies

Mrs Jemima Khoo, BTh, MA, MRE
Lecturer in Christian Education

Miss Carol Lee, BBA, MEd, MDiv
Lecturer in Christian Education

Editor : Jeffrey Khoo
Publisher : Far Eastern Bible College
Permit : MITA (P) 130/03/2000
Printer : Chung Printing

The Burning Bush (ISSN 0219-015X) is published bi-annually in January and July, and contains theological papers, sermons, testimonies, book reviews, College news, and alumni reports. Articles are indexed in the Christian Periodical Index. The journal is distributed gratis to the FEBC family and Bible-Presbyterian churches, and available online at www.lifefebc.com. Local/Foreign subscription rates in Singapore dollars: one year—$6/$12; two years—$10/$20; back issues—$3/$6 per copy. Make cheques payable to “Far Eastern Bible College.”

Please direct all correspondence to:

The Editor, The Burning Bush
Far Eastern Bible College
9A Gilstead Road, Singapore 309063
Republic of Singapore

BOB JONES UNIVERSITY AND THE KJV:
A CRITIQUE OF *FROM THE MIND OF GOD
TO THE MIND OF MAN

Jeffrey Khoo

From the Mind of God to the Mind of Man (231 pages)—published in 1999 by Ambassador-Emerald International (Greenville SC, USA, and Belfast, N Ireland), and edited by James B Williams is the latest book to attack KJV-only advocates. KJV-only advocates (1) believe the King James or Authorised Version (KJV/AV) to be the most faithful, trustworthy, and accurate translation of the English Bible available today, and (2) contend that the English-speaking Church should use it alone. A number of books have already been written against the KJV by modernists and neo-evangelicals. From the Mind of God to the Mind of Man, however, is written by fundamentalists. Sadly, instead of defending God and His Word, we find fundamentalists singing the same anti-biblical tune of anti-fundamentalists. Sounding like modernists and neo-evangelicals, Williams scoffed at KJV-defending fundamentalists, calling them “unqualified”, “immature,” and a “cancerous sore” (4,7). Is there not treachery within the camp?

James B Williams, the general editor of the book, is on the Bob Jones University (BJU) Board of Trustees. The 19 who contributed to the book are professors, graduates, or friends of BJU. It is reported that Dr Bob Jones III—president of BJU—highly recommended the book in the 1999 World Congress of Fundamentalists, calling it the “most significant book for fundamentalism in this century.” It sold like hot cakes. A sad day for fundamentalism it was. By such an endorsement, BJU has kowtowed to the god of humanistic scholarship. From the Mind of God to the Mind of Man exalts man’s mind over God’s. It promotes unregenerate and modernistic scholarship, and downgrades spiritual and biblical discernment.

Now, let us examine the book chapter by chapter.

“Introduction: The Issue We Face” by James B Williams

From the Mind of God to the Mind of Man seeks to address the KJV controversy within fundamentalism. According to Williams, the view that the KJV should be the only translation used by fundamentalists “has created unnecessary confusion and division. ... [and] is doing more damage to the cause of Christ among Fundamentalists than any ... other controversies” (2).

Williams’s charge that KJV-only advocates have created “unnecessary confusion and division” is false. The only agenda KJV-only advocates have is to call the Church back to the traditional and preserved text of Scriptures as found in the KJV and its underlying Hebrew and Greek texts over against the plethora of modern and corrupted versions (or perversions) of the Bible. Why should fundamentalists who should be on the Lord’s side be angry with those from within their camp who refuse to bow the knee to the modern Baal of Textual Criticism and side with modern Balaams like Westcott and Hort? Williams is upset over the militancy of KJV-only advocates, but is this not what the Lord requires of His Church militant? When false teachers seek to destroy God’s Word and His Church, how can God’s people not be filled with righteous indignation and speak out passionately in defence of both the Living and Written Word? How can we not be like loyal David who declared, “Do not I hate them, O LORD, that hate thee? And am not I grieved with those that rise up against thee? I hate them with perfect hatred: I count them mine enemies” (Ps 139:21-22)? Westcott and Hort and their cohorts are enemies of Christ and His Word. The prophet Jehu’s words to compromising Jehoshaphat apply equally to BJU, “Shouldest thou help the ungodly, and love them that hate the Lord?” (2 Chr 19:1-2). The Bob Jones sanhedrin is telling KJV-only fundamentalists to shut up. But we reply with the Apostle Peter, “We ought to obey God rather than men” (Acts 5:29).

The biblical voice of KJV-only advocates is one and is clear, namely this: We believe and teach that “the Texts which are closest to the original autographs of the Bible are the Traditional Masoretic Hebrew Text for the Old Testament, and the Traditional Greek Text for the New Testament underlying the King James Version.” And we believe and teach that the King James Version (or Authorised Version) of the English Bible is a true, faithful, and accurate translation of these two providentially preserved Texts (ie, the Traditional Masoretic Hebrew Text and Traditional Greek Text underlying the KJV), which in our time has no equal among all of the other English Translations. The translators did such a fine job in their translation task that we can without apology hold up the Authorised Version of 1611 and say ‘This is the Word of God!’ while at the same time realising that, in some verses, we must go back to the underlying original language Texts for complete clarity, and also compare Scripture with Scripture (The Dean Burgon Society, Articles of Faith, Section II.A).

BOB JONES UNIVERSITY AND THE KJV

Wherein lies the confusion? The confusion is not caused by KJV-only advocates but by fundamentalists who blur the issue by being neutral, claiming to be “balanced” (9). What is BJU’s official position on Westcott and Hort, and modern versions? David L Turner in his book—Standing Without Apology (BJU Press, 1997)—on the history of BJU wrote,

The position of the school’s Bible Department was especially important. The statement authored by Stewart Custer and Marshall Neal was approved by the entire Bible faculty. ... the department believed “that the text based upon the Alexandrian manuscripts is, as a whole, superior to the text based upon manuscripts of the Middle Ages.” ... They concluded the statement by saying, “Christians should be free to choose and use either of these texts and still work together in harmony to teach and preach the Word of God to those who are without it.”

In keeping with the University’s commitment to balance, it is interesting to note that among the Bob Jones University graduate school Bible faculty, there are some who hold to the superiority of the Majority Text and others who hold to the Westcott and Hort Alexandrian Text. None of the Bible faculty accepts the Textus Receptus of Erasmus as superior to either the Majority or Alexandrian texts.

BJU adopts a neutral position on the Bible versions. This yes and no, neither for nor against, both-and equivocation of BJU is the cause of the confusion and division within fundamentalism. Was it not middle-of-the-road neo-evangelicalism that created the confusion that is plaguing Christendom today? In his excellent treatise—The Tragedy of Compromise—Ernest Pickering, quoting W B Riley, rightly warned against those “in-betweenites.” Sadly, on the KJV issue, Pickering has become an “in-betweenite” himself. He contributed to the confusion by writing a congratulatory preface to this so-called “balanced” (read “compromising”) book. John Ashbrook warned others against the dangers of “New Neutralism” in his book by the same title. Like Pickering he too succumbed to the “Neutralism” he so ably exposed by contributing a neutral chapter to a neutral tome. It is this neutral attitude of BJU that is causing the confusion within fundamentalism! Dr Dell Johnson of Pensacola Theological Seminary has rightly called this neutralism and compromise “the leaven in fundamentalism.” Our plea to our fellow fundamentalists is one they know well: Be ye not unequally yoked together with Westcott and Hort!

“Our Final Authority: Revelation, Inspiration, Inerrancy, Infallibility, and Authority of the Bible” by Randolph Shaylor

Shaylor has done well to argue for the plenary and verbal inspiration of the Bible (19). He believes the Bible to be absolutely inspired in every detail, and without error in all matters (23). The scriptural texts he quoted as proof are the two classic passages on biblical inspiration: 2 Tim 3:15-16, and 2 Pet 1:21.

However, the shortcoming of Shaylor’s chapter is his failure to address the doctrine of biblical preservation. Many KJV-opponents deny the existence of this doctrine. Shaylor did not deny this doctrine, but he does seem confused over what preservation entails. In his brief two-sentenced paragraph on “The Preservation of Revelation,” he states his belief that God preserves His Word, then confuses it with the way He does it. Shaylor wrote, “God has made His revelation available to others than those to whom it was immediately given” How? “... by preserving His truth in written form” (16). This is a fine statement (though it would have been better if he had cited some proof-texts). God has indeed promised that His Holy Scriptures would not only be presented in all its purity to the Church then, but also to the Church now (Ps 12:6-7). But Shaylor reveals his confusion over preservation by saying that God “guaranteed the veracity of these writings by using the special method of imparting His truth that we know as inspiration.” God did not promise to preserve His Word by means of inspiration! This last statement should be placed under the section on inspiration, not preservation. Inspiration is miraculous, but preservation is providential. Inspiration is a non-repeatable work of God in history; preservation is a continuous work of God throughout history. I would therefore rephrase Shaylor’s statement this way, “God imparted His truth without error in written form by using the special method known as divine inspiration, and guaranteed the veracity of these writings by means of another special method called providential preservation.”

Shaylor’s confusion over the twin doctrines of inspiration and preservation is compounded by his erroneous view that God’s inspiration of His Word resides only in the autographs (ie, the author's actual scripts), and not the copies (regardless of whether it is a particular manuscript or a group of manuscripts) (22). What Shaylor is trying to tell us is that we can only be absolutely sure that the autographs are infallible and inerrant. Only the autographs are inspired, the copies are not. If what Shaylor says is true, then the Church today is bereft of the inspired Scriptures since we no longer have the autographs, only the copies. From the Mind of God to the Mind of Man touts itself as "a layman's guide to how we got our Bible." But its rejection of the doctrine of biblical preservation, telling us that only the autographs are inspired, undermines the layman's confidence on the Bible, and cast doubts in his mind over whether he has indeed the pure Word of God. Is not this agnostic view of our Scriptures today a stumbling block to the layman? The Lord's warning applies, "But whoso shall offend one of these little ones which believe in me, it were better for him that a millstone were hanged about his neck, and that he were drowned in the depth of the sea" (Matt 18:6).

Shaylor went on to argue that nowhere does the Bible teach or even imply that the copies of Scripture are inerrantly and infallibly inspired (22). If Shaylor is right, then Jesus is wrong. Jesus testified that the OT Scriptures—the Law and the Prophets—that He had (which were copies and not the autographs) were infallible and inerrant to the jot and tittle, and must all be fulfilled (Matt 5:17-18). Jesus knew full well that His Word was not only divinely inspired, but also divinely preserved. This is clearly taught in Ps 12:6-7,

The words of the LORD are pure words: as silver tried in a furnace of earth, purified seven times. Thou shalt keep them, O LORD, thou shalt preserve them from this generation for ever.

Shaylor cites B B Warfield to support his view that inspiration extends only to the original autographs (25). We respect Warfield for his many conservative views, but he was wrong to limit the inspiration of the Bible only to the original autographs; inspiration should extend to the apographs (ie, copies) as well. Dr Edward F Hills, in his book—The King James Version Defended—explains why,

If the doctrine of divine inspiration of the Old and New Testament Scriptures is a true doctrine, the doctrine of the providential preservation of these Scriptures must also be a true doctrine. It must be that down through the centuries God has exercised a special, providential control over the copying of the Scriptures and the preservation and use of the original text have been available to God's people in every age. God must have done this, for if He gave the Scriptures to His Church by inspiration as the perfect and final revelation of his will, then it is obvious that He would not allow this revelation to disappear or undergo any alteration of its fundamental character"

... if the doctrines of the divine inspiration and providential preservation of these Scriptures are true doctrines, then the textual criticism of the New Testament is different from that of the uninspired writings of antiquity. The textual criticism of any book must take into account the conditions under which the original manuscripts were written and also under which the copies of these manuscripts were made and preserved. But if the doctrines of the divine inspiration and providential preservation of the Scriptures are true, then THE ORIGINAL NEW TESTAMENT MANUSCRIPTS WERE WRITTEN UNDER SPECIAL CONDITIONS, UNDER THE INSPIRATION OF GOD, AND THE COPIES WERE MADE AND PRESERVED UNDER SPECIAL CONDITIONS, UNDER THE SINGULAR CARE AND PROVIDENCE OF GOD.

In another book—Believing Bible Study—Hills warned,

If we ignore the providential preservation of the Scriptures and defend the New Testament text in the same way that we defend the texts of other ancient books, then we are following the logic of unbelief. For the special, providential preservation of the holy Scriptures is a fact and an important fact. Hence when we ignore this fact and deal with the text of the New Testament as we would with the text of other books, we are behaving as unbelievers behave. We are either denying that the providential preservation of the Scriptures is a fact, or else we are saying that it is not an important fact, not important enough to be considered when dealing with the New Testament text. But if the providential preservation of the Scriptures is not important, why is the infallible inspiration of the original Scriptures important? If God has not preserved the Scriptures by His special providence, why would He have infallibly inspired them in the first place? And if the Scriptures are not infallibly inspired, how do we know that the Gospel message is true? And if the Gospel message is not true, how do we know that Jesus is the Son of God?

It is a dangerous error therefore to ignore the special, providential preservation of the holy Scriptures and to seek to defend the New Testament text in the same way in which we would defend the texts of other ancient books. For the logic of this unbelieving attitude is likely to lay hold upon us and cast us down into a bottomless pit of uncertainty. ...

BOB JONES UNIVERSITY AND THE KJV

The Bible teaches us that faith is the foundation of reason. Through faith we understand (Heb. 11:3). By faith we lay hold on God as He reveals Himself in the holy Scriptures and make Him the starting point of all our thinking. ...

Like the Protestant Reformers therefore we must take God as the starting point of all our thinking. We must begin with God. Very few Christians, however, do this consistently. For example, even when a group of conservative Christian scholars meet for the purpose of defending the Textus Receptus and the King James Version, you will find that some of them want to do this in a rationalistic, naturalistic way. Instead of beginning with God, they wish to begin with facts viewed apart from God, with details concerning the New Testament manuscripts which must be regarded as true (so they think) no matter whether God exists or not. ...

Conservative scholars ... say that they believe in the special, providential preservation of the New Testament text. Most of them really don't though, because, as soon as they say this, they immediately reduce this special providential preservation to the vanishing point in order to make room for the naturalistic theories of Westcott and Hort. As we have seen, some say that the providential preservation of the New Testament means merely that the same "substance of doctrine" is found in all the New Testament documents. Others say that it means that the true reading is always present in at least one of the thousands of extant New Testament manuscripts. And still other scholars say that to them the special, providential preservation of the Scriptures means that the true New Testament text was providentially discovered in the mid-19th century by Tischendorf, Tregelles, and Westcott and Hort after having been lost for 1,500 years.

If you adopt one of these false views of the providential preservation of Scriptures, then you are logically on your way toward the denial of the infallible inspiration of the Scriptures. For if God has preserved the Scriptures so carelessly, why would he have infallibly inspired them in the first place? It is not sufficient therefore merely to say that you believe in the doctrine of the special, providential preservation of holy Scriptures. You must really believe this doctrine and allow it to guide your thinking. You must begin with Christ and the Gospel and proceed according to the logic of faith. This will lead you to the Traditional text, the Textus Receptus, and the King James Version, in other words, to the common faith.

Not only was Warfield's definition of biblical inspiration faulty, he was also wrong to promote the destructive textual critical theories of Westcott and Hort. Many fundamentalists have unwittingly imbibed the poison of Westcott and Hort through Warfield. BJU and other fundamentalist schools like Calvary Baptist Theological Seminary, Central Baptist Theological Seminary, Detroit Baptist Theological Seminary, Maranatha Baptist Bible College, Northland Baptist Bible College, and Temple Baptist Seminary (all listed on page iii), have all been infected by the Westcott and Hort leaven.

It will not do for Christians to affirm biblical inspiration, yet at the same time deny biblical preservation. Dr Timothy Tow has rightly said,

We believe the preservation of Holy Scripture and its Divine inspiration stand in the same position as providence and creation. If Deism teaches a Creator who goes to sleep after creating the world is absurd, to hold to the doctrine of inspiration without preservation is equally illogical. ... Without preservation, all the inspiration, God-breathing into the Scriptures, would be lost. But we have a Bible so pure and powerful in every word and it is so because God has preserved it down through the ages.

We affirm with the Westminster divines that our Old and New Testaments, “being immediately inspired by God, and by His singular care and providence, kept pure in all ages, are therefore authentical” (WCF 1:8).

Shaylor concludes his chapter by stating in bold, “We have the Word of God” (28). But the question remains, which and where? His idea of inspiration, that only the original autographs are inspired, which we do not have today, has left us without a Bible we can say with utmost confidence, “This is the Word of God, inspired, inerrant, intact.” If we follow Shaylor’s logic with regard to inspiration, we would not be able to say, “We have the Word of God.”

“Canonization and Apocrypha” by Paul W Downey

Downey provides a succinct, factual account of the process of biblical canonisation. However, Downey’s chapter is skewed by his comment that the KJV of 1611 “followed the Council of Trent, not the Reformers, in its treatment of the Apocrypha” (45). By so saying, Downey gives the distorted impression that the KJV translators had considered the Apocrypha as part of inspired Scripture. This cannot be further from the truth. It is without question, that the translators accepted these apocryphal books only for their historical value. They in no wise considered them to be inspired Scripture. Alexander McClure, in his book—The Translators Revived—gave seven reasons why they rejected the Apocrypha:

1. Not one of them is in the Hebrew language, which was alone used by the inspired historians and poets of the Old Testament.

BOB JONES UNIVERSITY AND THE KJV

2. Not one of the writers lays any claim to inspiration.
3. These books were never acknowledged as sacred Scriptures by the Jewish Church, and therefore were never sanctioned by our Lord.
4. They were not allowed a place among the sacred books, during the first four centuries of the Christian Church.
5. They contain fabulous statements, and statements which contradict not only the canonical Scriptures, but themselves; as when, in the two Books of Maccabees, Antiochus Epiphanes is made to die three different deaths in as many different places.
6. It inculcates doctrines at variance with the Bible, such as prayers for the dead and sinless perfection.
7. It teaches immoral practices, such as lying, suicide, assassination and magical incantation.

Downey has thus unfairly portrayed the KJV as a Popish Bible because it included the Apocrypha. He cast a slur against the KJV by saying that the Puritans and Separatists rejected the KJV in favour of the Geneva Bible because the latter excluded the Apocrypha (45-6). But this is not the whole truth. Dr Errol F Rhodes and Dr Liana Lupas who edited The Translators to the Reader: The Original Preface of the King James Version Revised—present a more accurate picture

The books of the Apocrypha were included in the King James Version from the first as a matter of course, as they had been in all versions of the English Bible from the time of Wycliffe (c. 1384), including the Calvinist Geneva Bible of 1560. ... The deliberate omission of the Apocrypha from an English Bible is first noted in the 1640 edition of the Geneva Bible, ... Not until the nineteenth century, however, did the omission of the Apocrypha in Protestant Bibles become normal.

The Protestants in those days were obviously a victim of their times. Although the Apocrypha was found in Reformation Bibles (including the Geneva) since Wycliffe, it is clear that all of the Reformers opposed the Roman Catholic Church, and by the same token, rejected the Apocrypha as spurious. The feelings of the KJV translators, some of whom were Puritans, must necessarily be the same as those who produced the Westminster Confession of Faith (1645). In no uncertain terms, the Westminster divines wrote,

The books commonly called Apocrypha, not being of divine inspiration, are no part of the canon of the Scripture, and therefore are of no authority in the Church of God, nor to be any otherwise approved, or made use of, than other human writings (WCF 1:3).

It is also significant to note that when it came to translating the Apocrypha, the KJV translators did not care very much for it. Scrivener wrote, “It is well known to Biblical scholars that the Apocrypha received very inadequate attention from the revisers of 1611 and their predecessors, so that whole passages remain unaltered from the racy, spirited, rhythmical, but hasty, loose and most inaccurate version . . . made by Coverdale for the Bible of 1536.”

What can we say about this book—From the Mind of God to the Mind—which aims to present a “balanced” view on the KJV issue? So far, this reviewer gets the sense that instead of presenting a “balanced” view, the writers are bent on finding fault with the KJV.

“Let’s Meet the Manuscripts” by Minnick

Mark Minnick, in his chapter, dealt with the so-called science of textual criticism. He goes to great lengths to explain to the layman that textual criticism does not “criticise” the Bible but explains and analyses it (70-98). It ought to be noted that most KJV-only advocates do not dispute the need for constructive textual criticism that is founded on the principles of faith and spiritual discernment. What we are against is humanistic and modernistic textual criticism that seeks to take away God’s words from us. Such destructive textual criticism is found in these two infamous modernists—Westcott and Hort—who did not believe in the plenary, verbal inspiration of the Holy Scriptures. Westcott and Hort were translators of the Revised Version (RV). In their translation of 2 Tim 3:16, they questioned the doctrine of biblical inspiration by rendering the verse this way, “Every Scripture inspired of God is also profitable. . . .” By placing the copula “is” after “inspired of God,” the clause is made to mean that not all parts of Scripture are inspired of God; only those portions which are inspired are profitable. The KJV translators, on the other hand, correctly placed the copula “is” right after “All Scripture:” “All Scripture is given by inspiration of God, and is profitable. . . .” The KJV leaves no ambiguity whatsoever that all of Scripture is divinely inspired. Westcott and Hort’s alteration of the KJV’s rendering of 2 Tim 3:16 in the RV evinces their limited inerrancy view of Scripture.

When the RV came out in 1881, Robert L Dabney, was furious over its rendering of 2 Tim 3:16, and wrote a scathing attack against it in the Southern Presbyterian Review (July 1881),

The poisonous suggestion intended is that, among the parts of the “scripture” some are inspired and some are not. Our Bible contains fallible parts! The very doctrine of the Socinian and Rationalist. This treacherous version the revisers (viz, Westcott and Hort) have gratuitously sanctioned!

Indeed as modernists, Westcott and Hort were not fit to handle the Scriptures. They cannot be trusted.

What is indeed strange is that Mark Minnick who quoted Dabney (90-91) cannot see that Westcott and Hort are not friends but enemies of the Bible. Their poisonous fruit reveals their reprobate root. In Matt 7:15-18, Jesus had warned, Beware of false prophets, which come to you in sheep’s clothing, but inwardly they are ravening wolves. Ye shall know them by their fruits. Do men gather grapes of thorns, or figs of thistles? Even so every good tree bringeth forth good fruit; but a corrupt tree bringeth forth evil fruit. A good tree cannot bring forth evil fruit, neither can a corrupt tree bring forth good fruit.

We would think Minnick—a BJU Bible Professor—would rise up in defence of the faith. Sadly, the opposite is true. He praised Westcott and Hort and called them “careful” textual critics (85). He adopts Westcott and Hort’s destructive textual critical method.

Minnick believes in the Westcott and Hort lie that the difference between their revised Greek text and the traditional Greek text is no more than “a thousandth part of the entire text,” which he adds is no more than “one page of my entire Testament” (86). Scrivener’s Greek Text published in 1881, and reprinted by the Dean Burgon Society Press in 1999, compared the Textus Receptus with the Westcott and Hort Text. Scrivener’s comparison reveals 5,604 places where the Westcott and Hort Greek Text differed from the Textus Receptus. His footnotes show that Westcott and Hort changed a total of 9,970 Greek words either by addition or subtraction. That is almost 50 pages of my entire Testament.

Minnick went on to argue that fundamentalists should view the Westcott and Hort text positively as did C H Spurgeon, G Campbell Morgan, Alexander MacClaren, C I Scofield, H A Ironside and others (87-8). As a fundamentalist, Minnick ought to know that our faith must rest not on man (no matter how conservative they might be) but on the Bible alone. Sola Scriptura! Minnick's mention of those great preachers of the past only goes to prove that the leaven of Westcott and Hort's destructive textual criticism had also infected them. The leaven has indeed spread far and wide. "A little leaven leaveneth the whole lump" (Gal 5:9).

The general pro-Westcott-Hort slant in Minnick's chapter is not only seen by what he says, but also what he does not say. The great textual scholar—Dean J W Burgon—who defended the KJV is often neglected or ignored by supporters of the modern versions. Minnick is no exception. Burgon is markedly absent in Minnick's discussion about the text. Who is Dean Burgon? Why should he be taken seriously? I will leave Hills to introduce him to you:

John William Burgon (1813-1888) became an outstanding English scholar and textual critic. Burgon was born at Smyrna, the son of an English merchant. He studied at London University (1829-1830) and then was engaged for a time in his father's business. In 1841 he returned to his studies, entering Oxford University. He received his BA, MA, and BD degrees from Oxford in the years 1845, 1848, and 1871, respectively. He was elected fellow of Oriel College, Oxford, in 1848. He was appointed Gresham professor of divinity at Oxford in 1867. He became vicar of St Mary's Church, Oxford, in 1863, and he was appointed Dean of Chichester in 1876.

Burgon was no mean theologian, and his preaching was well attended. He was the author of numerous publications, including sermons, tracts, commentaries, and biographies. But as he pressed his studies of the New Testament text, he became best known for his work in the sphere of NT textual criticism.

Burgon's lively literary style could possibly be traced to his early days in Smyrna, Turkey; his mother being a native of that country, and his father an English merchant there. At any rate he developed a warm and enthusiastic nature, not typically English, together with a forthright and honest character which would not allow him to accept pseudo-textual criticism.

Being driven by the desire to get to the bottom of the false statements being made by the reigning Critics of his day, Burgon devoted the last 30 years of his life to disprove them. Believing firmly that God had providentially preserved the true text of the New Testament, he set out to discover how the depraved and corrupt readings developed. This required him to travel widely. In 1860, for instance, he traveled to the Vatican Library to personally examine Codex B. And in 1862 he traveled to Mt

Sinai to inspect the many manuscripts there. Later he made several tours of European libraries, examining and actually collating NT manuscripts wherever he went. At the same time he was compiling his massive Index of the NT Quotations in the Church Fathers, which is deposited in the British Museum, but never published.

Throughout his life Burgon remained unmarried, and no doubt this had some bearing on the fact that he, as he put it, was willing to spend an entire 13-hour day to establish the authenticity of a single letter of the New Testament Text. His masterly accumulation of evidence first became apparent when he confronted the Critics with his 300-page book—The Last Twelve Verses of the Gospel According to Saint Mark—in 1871. His evidence was so complete, and his arguments so unassailable that no one tried to refute this book—either point by point, or in total. When the English Revised Version appeared in 1881, he was asked to review it for the Quarterly Review. The result was the printing of his review articles in a book which he entitled, The Revision Revised. During all of his active life Burgon was accumulating notes and research data in order to establish what he called The Traditional Text of the Holy Gospels as the historically authentic and proven Word of God. After his death in 1888, his long-time friend and co-worker—the Rev Edward Miller—gathered together the Dean’s notes and issued the two valuable books entitled, The Traditional Text of the Holy Gospels; and The Causes of the Corruption of the Traditional Text of the Holy Gospels (both 1896).

Through all these works runs Burgon’s fundamental thought, viz, that the textual criticism of the Scriptures must be according to the analogy of faith, and because of this it must be different from the textual criticism of any other book. On this he wrote, “That which distinguishes Sacred Science from every other Science which can be named is that it is Divine, and has to do with a Book which is inspired, and not to be regarded upon a level with the Books of the East, which are held by their votaries to be sacred. ... Even those principles of Textual Criticism which in the case of profane authors are regarded as fundamental are often out of place here” (Traditional Text, 9). In this Burgon was diametrically opposed to the other 19th century critics, notably Westcott and Hort, who stated plainly that textual criticism of the Bible should be handled in the same way as with any other book. But Burgon, who never lost sight of the special providence of God which has presided over the transmission of the New Testament down through the ages, expressly set out to maintain against all opponents that the Church was divinely guided to reject the false readings of the early centuries, and to gradually accept the true text. He denied that he was claiming a perpetual miracle that would keep manuscripts from being depraved at various times, and in various places. But “The Church, in her collective capacity, has nevertheless—as a matter of fact—been perpetually purging herself of those shamefully depraved copies which once everywhere abounded within her pale” (The Revision Revised, 334-5). He believed that just as God gradually settled the Canon of the New Testament by weaning His churches from non-canonical books, so He did with the Text also.

Not being willing to dig to the depths that Burgon dug, and not being able to disprove Burgon’s facts, his opponents (particularly Westcott and Hort) refused to accept his challenges. They adopted a course of simply portraying Burgon as some kind of Don Quixote who jousting at obstacles too hard for him to understand. Or else they pictured him as too violent in his statements, and thus as if he were a madman, they ignored him. In textual criticism textbooks it has become a tradition to hold Burgon up to ridicule, as if he were an obscurantist who foolishly challenged the “assured results” of modern scholarship. This gross misrepresentation is gradually being exposed by the simple expedient of reproducing Burgon’s books. The scholarly, close-reasoned, fact-filled works of Burgon have persuaded many a scholar in this last part of the 20th century that God indeed has not abandoned His words from the day after they came abroad, but has instead guided His children so as to preserve every jot and tittle of His Word. The Traditional Text (or, Byzantine Text, as it is called today) being virtually the same in the manuscripts from the 4th century onward, is proof enough of the doctrine of God’s preservation of the Text, according to Burgon’s reasoning, and his massive accumulation of evidence.

Dean Burgon had an extremely high view of God’s Word. He believed in a 100% inerrant Bible. He said,

The Bible is none other than the voice of Him that sitteth upon the throne. Every book of it, every chapter of it, every verse of it, every syllable of it, every letter of it, is direct utterance of the Most High. The Bible is none other than the Word of God, not some part of it more, some part of it less, but all alike the utterance of Him that sitteth upon the throne, faultless, unerring, supreme.

At every annual convocation, the faculty of the Far Eastern Bible College take an oath of allegiance to the Holy Scriptures based on Burgon’s words. Whose side are you on? Burgon or Westcott and Hort? If you are on the Lord’s side, you would support the former and not the latter.

Minnick lacked discernment and wisdom when he labeled KJV-only advocates “unscripturally divisive” (98). He then reassured his readers that the poisoned waters of Westcott and Hort are safe. He believes the corrupt Westcott and Hort text is superior to the Textus Receptus, and quoting Scofield, condescendingly said that Westcott and Hort “have cleared the Greek Textus Receptus of minor inaccuracies” (96). He also believes that the older but corrupt Alexandrian or Minority Text is to be valued and preferred over the readings of the Majority Text (96).

Is the Alexandrian or Minority Text that good? Dean Burgon in his 550-page magnum opus—The Revision Revised—has convincingly proven that the Alexandrian manuscripts of Westcott and Hort are among the most corrupt copies of the New Testament in existence. He said that the Codex Sinaiticus and Codex Vaticanus are most scandalously corrupt copies extant:—exhibit the most shamefully mutilated texts which are anywhere to be met with:—have become ... the depositories of the largest amount of fabricated readings, ancient blunders, and intentional perversions of Truth,—which are discoverable in any known copies of the Word of God.

It is significant to note that those two codices run against the readings of the majority (99%) of Greek New Testament manuscripts (over 5000) we have today. To prove the point, let me just cite one example from Dean Burgon to show how corrupt the 5 uncials—Sinaiticus (U), Alexandrinus (A), Vaticanus (B), Ephraemi Rescriptus (C), and Bezae Cantabrigiensis (D)—Westcott and Hort deemed most reliable really are. The passage under consideration is the Lord’s Prayer in Luke 11:2-4. The findings of Burgon are as follows:

1. D inserts Matt 7:7, “Use not vain repetitions as the rest: for some suppose that they shall be heard by their much speaking. But when ye pray ...”.
2. B and U removed 5 words “Our,” and “which art in heaven.”
3. D omits the definite article “the” before “name,” adds “upon us,” and rearranges “Thy Kingdom.”
4. B removes the clause, “Thy will be done, as in heaven, also on the earth.” Interestingly, U retains these words, but adds “so” before “also,” and omits the article before “earth” agreeing for once with A, C, and D.
5. U and D changed the form of the Greek word for “give.”
6. U omits definite article before “day by day.”
7. D, instead of the 3 last-named words, writes “this day” (from Matt), substitutes “debts” for “sins” (also from Matt), and in place of “for we ourselves” writes “as also we” (again from Matt).

8. U shows great sympathy with D by accepting two-thirds of this last blunder, exhibiting “as also [we] ourselves.”
9. D consistently read “our debtors” in place of “every one that is indebted to us.”
10. B and U canceled the last petition “but deliver us from evil,” going against A, C, and D.

Dean Burgon astutely judged,

So then, these five ‘first-class authorities’ are found to throw themselves into six different combinations in their departures from S. Luke’s way of exhibiting the Lord’s Prayer,—which, among them, they contrive to falsify in respect of no less than 45 words; and yet they are never able to agree among themselves as to any single various reading: while only once are more than two of them observed to stand together,—viz. in the unauthorized omission of the article. In respect of 32 (out of the 45) words, they bear in turn solitary evidence. What need to declare that it is certainly false in every instance? Such however is the infatuation of the Critics, that the vagaries of B are all taken for gospel. Besides omitting the 11 words which B omits jointly with U, Drs. Westcott and Hort erase from the Book of Life those other 11 precious words which are omitted by B only. And in this way it comes to pass that the mutilated condition to which the scalpel of Marcion the heretic reduced the Lord’s Prayer some 1730 years ago, (for mischief can all be traced back to him!), is palmed off on the Church of England by the Revisionists as the work of the Holy Ghost!

So what is the bottom line? Should fundamentalists use the Westcott and Hort text and method? Our BJU friends should listen to Dr Alfred Martin, former Vice-President of Moody Bible Institute:

The only road to progress in New Testament textual criticism is repudiation of their (ie, Westcott and Hort) theory and all its fruits. Most contemporary criticism is bankrupt and confused, the result of its liaison with liberal theology. A Bible-believing Christian can never be content to follow the leadership of those who do not recognize the Bible as the verbally inspired Word of God. The Textus Receptus is the starting-point for future research, because it embodies substantially and in a convenient form the traditional text.

“The History of the Textus Receptus” by John E Ashbrook

Ashbrook’s chapter employs a “soothe then slap” approach to evaluating the Textus Receptus, and its first editor—Erasmus. Ashbrook begins by praising Erasmus for his genius as a biblical and textual scholar, and then castigates him as a modernist (102). It is very careless of KJV critics to label Erasmus a modernist. Erasmus, like Luther, had his doctrinal weaknesses, but he was hardly a modernist. Modernists like Westcott and Hort have a very low view of Scripture. Erasmus on the other hand had a high view of Scripture evinced by his painstakingly edited Greek New Testament which in no small way aided the cause of the Reformation. Like the Reformers, Erasmus desired the Scriptures to be translated into all languages so that every one could read it and know Christ for himself. Hear his testimony:

I would have the weakest woman read the Gospels and the Epistles of St. Paul ... I would have those words translated into all languages, so that not only Scots and Irishmen, but Turks and Saracens might read them. I long for the plowboy to sing them to himself as he follows the plow, ... Other studies we may regret having undertaken, but happy is the man upon whom death comes when he is engaged in these. These sacred words give you the very image of Christ speaking, healing, dying, rising again, and make Him so present, that were He before your very eyes you would not more truly see Him.

Ashbrook disparagingly says that Erasmus was “a loyal son of the Catholic Church” (102). This is another misrepresentation. Erasmus publicly exposed the heresies and superstitions of the Roman Catholic Church. This angered the pope so much that he branded Erasmus “an impious heretic,” and banned his books from being read by Catholics. The pope evidently was able to see that Erasmus was a Reformer at heart. However, as a Reformer, Erasmus’s main fault was in his failure to separate from the false Catholic Church (cf 2 Cor 6:14-7:1). Luther succeeded in his reformation because he did it from without, but Erasmus failed because he chose to do it from within. Nevertheless, as someone had observed, it was Erasmus who laid the egg of the Reformation, and Luther was left to hatch it.

Ashbrook is unhappy with people who scoff at Westcott and Hort just because they were textual critics (104, 108). He contends that KJV advocates who reject Westcott and Hort as textual critics, must likewise reject Erasmus for he too was a textual critic. We do not dispute that Erasmus did the work of textual criticism, but the question is not on textual criticism per se, but the type of textual criticism employed. Westcott and Hort invented a textual critical method which sought to take God’s Word away from God’s people. The amount of verses Westcott and Hort scissored out from our Bible is equivalent to that of First and Second Peter. Erasmus, on the other hand, did not engage in this type of deconstructive textual criticism. Erasmus's textual critical work was guided by the common faith, ie, the belief that God had providentially preserved the Scriptures down through the ages. Edward F Hills said,

In the days of Erasmus, ... it was commonly believed by well informed Christians that the original New Testament text had been providentially preserved in the current New Testament text, primarily in the current Greek text and secondarily in the current Latin text. Erasmus was influenced by this common faith and probably shared it, and God used it providentially to guide Erasmus in his editorial labors on the Textus Receptus.

What sets Erasmus apart from Westcott and Hort was his belief that God has kept His Word intact down through the centuries. This caused him to edit the Greek New Testament with great reverence, taking care not to snip away God's Word. Westcott and Hort's textual critical work was quite different. Both denied the doctrines of inspiration and preservation, and thus had no qualms whatsoever in spurning the majority of New Testament Scripture that God had preserved for His people down through the ages in favour of two extremely corrupted texts which the Church had already seen fit to discard.

If Erasmus was such a faithful textual critic, then how would one explain the charge that in his hurry to complete his Greek text, he translated the last few verses of Revelation from Latin to Greek because the last page of his manuscript on Revelation was missing? Hills gave another side to this,

The last six verses of Codex 1r (Rev. 22:16-21) were lacking, ... According to almost all scholars, Erasmus endeavoured to supply these deficiencies in his manuscript by retranslating the Latin Vulgate into Greek. Hoskier, however, was inclined to dispute this on the evidence of manuscript 141. In his 4th edition of his Greek New Testament (1527) Erasmus corrected much of this translation Greek (if it was indeed such) on the basis of a comparison with the Complutensian Polyglot Bible ...

It is customary for naturalistic critics to make the most of human imperfections in the Textus Receptus and to sneer at it as a mean and almost sordid thing. ... But those who concentrate in this way on the human factors involved in the production of the Textus Receptus are utterly unmindful of the Providence of God. For in the very next year, in the plan of God, the Reformation was to break out in Wittenberg, and it was important that the Greek New Testament should be published first in one of the future strongholds of Protestantism by a book seller who was eager to place it in the hands of the people and not in Spain, the land of the Inquisition, by the Roman Church, which was intent on keeping the Bible from the people.

Ashbrook is right to observe that the view of biblical preservation “must be accepted by faith,” but wrong to say that this faith is based on “human assumption” (106). This belief on biblical preservation is based not on human assumption but divine revelation (Exod 32:15-19, 34:1-4, Pss 12:6-7, 78:1-8, 105:8, 119:89,111,152,160, Prov 22:20-21, Eccl 3:14, Jer 36-30-32, Matt 4:4, 5:17-18, 24:35, John 10:35, Col 1:17, 1 Pet 1:23-25, Rev 22:18-19).

“Printed Greek Texts” by William H Smallman

Smallman’s chapter presents a succinct update on the history of the printed Greek texts. However, in his evaluation of the two distinct families of printed Greek texts, viz, the Minority/Westcott-Hort/Critical text, and the Majority/Textus Receptus/Traditional text, it is unfortunate that he favours the so-called “eclectic” text or “balanced” approach which is essentially pro-Westcott and Hort.

In his opening discussion, Smallman says that the first printed Greek text (which became the Textus Receptus) by Erasmus was “hastily edited,” and that he used only “half dozen or so manuscripts” (169-70). This invariably gives the layman the impression that the Textus Receptus was a result of sloppy work. Is this an accurate portrayal of Erasmus and his work? Hills rose to Erasmus’s defence,

By his travels [Erasmus] was brought into contact with all the intellectual currents of his time and stimulated to almost superhuman efforts. He became the most famous scholar and author of his day and one of the most prolific writers of all time, his collected works filling ten large volumes As an editor also his productivity was tremendous. Ten columns of the catalogue of the library in the British Museum are taken up with the bare enumeration of the works translated, edited, or annotated by Erasmus, and their subsequent reprints. Included are the greatest names of the classical and patristic world, such as Ambrose, Aristotle, Augustine, Basil, Chrysostom, Cicero, and Jerome. An almost unbelievable showing.

To conclude, there was no man in all Europe better prepared than Erasmus for the work of editing the first printed Greek New Testament text, and this is why, we may well believe, God chose him and directed him providentially in the accomplishment of this task.

Did Erasmus employ other manuscripts besides those five he had when preparing his Greek text? Hills answered,

The indications are that he did. ... It is well known also that Erasmus looked for manuscripts everywhere during his travels and that he borrowed them from everyone he could. Hence although the Textus Receptus was based mainly on the manuscripts which Erasmus found at Basel, it also included readings taken from others to which he had access. It agreed with the common faith because it was founded on manuscripts which in the providence of God were readily available.

To those who sought to demean Erasmus and the Textus Receptus, Dean Burgon had this to say, “to describe the haste with which Erasmus produced the first published edition of the NT, to make sport about the copies which he employed, all this kind of thing is the preceding of one who seeks to mislead his readers to throw dust in their eyes, to divert their attention from the problems actually before them.” I cannot agree more.

When it came for Smallman to describe the Westcott and Hort text, he called it “an important development,” and hailed the Codex Sinaiticus as “one of the finest quality manuscripts” in existence (172). He said that the Westcott and Hort text “produced a revolution,” which led to “a new quest to define the original text,” to be “based on new witnesses ... and on new approaches to interpreting the variants.” He also noted that the Westcott and Hort text and its offshoots contain “significant differences” from the Textus Receptus (171). Were those differences for the better or for the worse? Are the verses removed from the Textus Receptus by Westcott and Hort authentic or spurious? Smallman in his attempt to maintain his balancing act refused to say or commit himself. He wrote evasively, “It is not the purpose of this essay to debate the fundamentals of Westcott [sic] and Hort’s principles and canons” (173).

Smallman considers the modern, critical Greek texts of Nestle and Aland (NA), and the United Bible Societies (UBS) to be the “Standard Greek Testament.” He said, “The establishment of the United Bible Societies/Nestle-Aland Text as standard is accepted by many virtually without argument” (179). He also says that this “Standard Greek Text” “has been achieved by the majority of textual scholars who prefer the minority of manuscripts” (179). Despite the fact that this so-called “Standard Greek Text” is based only on a “minority of the manuscripts”

(ie, the corrupt Alexandrian manuscripts), Smallman has interestingly nothing negative to say about it. Like the modernists and neo-evangelicals, he takes the eclectic view that the critical UBS and NA Greek texts are truly “scholarly” and “balanced” vis-a-vis the Textus Receptus.

Is the UBS and NA Greek texts truly eclectic (ie, a mixture of all available texts), or is it really the Westcott and Hort text disguised; a wolf in sheep’s clothing? According to Radmacher and Hodges, the new “Textus Receptus” of the UBS and NA “do not differ a whole lot from the text produced by Westcott-Hort in 1881.” Gordon Fee, who is no fundamentalist, also acknowledged, “[In] Modern textual criticism, the ‘eclecticism’ of the UBS, RSV, NIV, NASB etc., ... recognizes that Westcott-Hort’s view of things was essentially correct.” Thus the term “eclectic” is but a smokescreen.

The UBS Greek Text itself when it first came out acknowledged that its work was carried out “on the basis of Westcott and Hort’s edition of the Greek New Testament.” It is thus no surprise that the first two editions of the UBS text relegated the pericope de adultera (John 7:53-8:11) from its original and traditional place to the end of the Gospel; this to show that the passage is considered non-authentic. This clearly reveals a Westcott and Hort attitude. Like Westcott and Hort, the UBS editors accepted without question the omission of those verses in the corrupt Alexandrian manuscripts over against the Traditional and Majority Text. It is interesting to note that the third edition transposed John 7:53-8:11 back to its original location. Are the editors now admitting their error in rejecting the pericope? Although the pericope is now returned to its rightful place, the passage is enclosed by double brackets. What do these double brackets mean? The UBS editors say, “Double brackets in the text indicate that the enclosed passages which are usually rather extensive are known not to be a part of the original text.” Not only this precious passage, but also Mark’s last 12 verses are also assigned double brackets. The UBS editors would like us to know that both passages are not inspired Scripture. Do you not see the forked tongue of the snake here? Why are fundamentalists hissing to the same tune? Are the last 12 verses of Mark, the pericope de adultera (John 7:53-8:11), the Johannine Comma (1 John 5:7-8), and a host of other verses Westcott and Hort removed from the Textus Receptus, divinely inspired? If you are looking to Smallman for answers, look no more! He is so “balanced,” he leaves you clueless.

Smallman would neither debate nor examine Westcott and Hort, but would spend three full pages (172-5) explaining their textual critical method which he deemed “profitable” (173), as compared to only half a page for the Textus Receptus (180). Do you not see the bias? Dean Burgon was only given cursory mention. Smallman did not consider Burgon’s books in defence of the Textus Receptus and KJV to be worth his time. Yet, Smallman was quick to use Burgon when it came time to undermine the layman’s confidence on the KJV. He quoted Burgon as saying,

Once for all, we request it may be clearly understood that we do not, by any means, claim perfection for the Received Text. We entertain no extravagant notions on this subject. Again and again we shall have occasion to point out ... that the Textus Receptus needs correction (182).

But Smallman should not have stopped there, giving a skewed picture. Burgon went on to express how deeply he appreciated the Textus Receptus,

We do but insist, (1) That it is an incomparably better text than that which either Lachmann, Tischendorf, or Tregelles has produced: infinitely preferable to the ‘New Greek Text’ of the Revisionists (viz, Westcott and Hort). And, (2) That to be improved, the Textus Receptus will have to be revised on entirely different ‘principles’ from those which are just now in fashion. Men must begin by unlearning the German (ie, liberal) prejudices ... and address themselves, instead to the stern logic of facts.

In his conclusion, Smallman reveals his confusion. He wrote quite rightly that

The divine preservation of the Scriptures is a fact that gives great assurance to those who read the Bible today. It is the Word of God, and every “jot and tittle” of it is kept intact for the readers of successive generations (182).

But in the next sentence he turns agnostic: “Still, our certainty of the preservation of the text does not identify which text family is the object of that providential oversight.” To him, the text is preserved in all the texts whether corrupt or not. Such a position is clearly illogical, and contradictory. I would urge readers to listen to Hills instead of Smallman, Let me repeat Hills’s most pertinent warning here,

It is a dangerous error therefore to ignore the special, providential preservation of the holy Scriptures and to seek to defend the New Testament text in the same way in which we would defend the texts of other ancient books. For the logic of this unbelieving attitude is likely to lay hold upon us and cast us down into a bottomless pit of uncertainty. ...

The Bible teaches us that faith is the foundation of reason. Through faith we understand (Heb. 11:3). By faith we lay hold on God as He reveals Himself in the holy Scriptures and make Him the starting point of all our thinking. ...

Like the Protestant Reformers therefore we must take God as the starting point of all our thinking. We must begin with God. Very few Christians, however, do this consistently. For example, even when a group of conservative Christian scholars meet for the purpose of defending the Textus Receptus and the King James Version, you will find that some of them want to do this in a rationalistic, naturalistic way. Instead of beginning with God, they wish to begin with facts viewed apart from God, with details concerning the New Testament manuscripts which must be regarded as true (so they think) no matter whether God exists or not. ...

Conservative scholars ... say that they believe in the special, providential preservation of the New Testament text. Most of them really don't though, because, as soon as they say this, they immediately reduce this special providential preservation to the vanishing point in order to make room for the naturalistic theories of Westcott and Hort. As we have seen, some say that the providential preservation of the New Testament means merely that the same "substance of doctrine" is found in all the New Testament documents. Others say that it means that the true reading is always present in at least one of the thousands of extant New Testament manuscripts. And still other scholars say that to them the special, providential preservation of the Scriptures means that the true New Testament text was providentially discovered in the mid-19th century by Tischendorf, Tregelles, and Westcott and Hort after having been lost for 1,500 years.

If you adopt one of these false views of the providential preservation of Scriptures, then you are logically on your way toward the denial of the infallible inspiration of the Scriptures. For if God has preserved the Scriptures so carelessly, why would he have infallibly inspired them in the first place? It is not sufficient therefore merely to say that you believe in the doctrine of the special, providential preservation of holy Scriptures. You must really believe this doctrine and allow it to guide your thinking. You must begin with Christ and the Gospel and proceed according to the logic of faith. This will lead you to the Traditional text, the Textus Receptus, and the King James Version, in other words, to the common faith.

Can we be certain of God's Word? God in Prov 22:20-21 says, "Have not I written to thee excellent things in counsels and knowledge,

That I might make thee know the certainty of the words of truth; that thou mightest answer the words of truth to them that send unto thee?" Be sure of this: God wants us to have certainty concerning His Words.

“The Making of the King James Version” by John C Mincy

Despite its helpful historical data, this chapter misrepresents the KJV translators in a most misleading way. In support of modern and corrupt versions, Mincy argued that the KJV translators themselves “viewed even the worst English versions as the Word of God” (141). He quoted them as saying, “Now to answer our enemies; we do not deny, rather we affirm and insist that the very worst translation of the Bible in English issued by Protestants contains the word of God, or rather, is the word of God.” This statement is most illogical and totally unbiblical!

Were the KJV translators capable of those words; the ones who extolled truth and condemned error? Consider what they wrote in their preface—“The Translators to the Readers,”

But now what piety without truth? What truth (what saving truth) without the word of God? What word of God (whereof we may be sure) without the Scripture? The Scriptures we are commanded to search (John 5.39; Isaiah 8.20). They are reprov'd that were unskilful in them, or slow to believe them (Matthew 22.29; Luke 24.25). They can make us wise unto salvation (2 Timothy 3.15). If we be ignorant, they will instruct us; if out of the way, they will bring us home; if out of order, they will reform us; if in heaviness, comfort us; if dull, quicken us; if cold, inflame us. Tolle, lege, Tolle, lege, Take up and read, take up and read the Scriptures ... The Scriptures then being acknowledged to be so full and so perfect, how can we excuse ourselves of negligence, if we do not study them? ... It is not only an armor, but also a whole armory of weapons, both offensive and defensive; whereby we may save ourselves and put the enemy to flight. It is not an herb, but a tree, or rather a whole paradise of trees of life, which bring forth fruit every month, and the fruit thereof is for meat, and the leaves for medicine. It is not a pot of Manna, or a cruse of oil, which were for memory only, or for a meal's meat or two; but as it were a shower of heavenly bread sufficient for a whole host, be it never so great, and as it were a whole cellar full of oil vessels; whereby all our necessities may be provided for, and our debts discharged. In a word, it is a panary of wholesome food, against fenowed traditions; a physician's shop ... of preservatives against poisoned heresies; a pandect of profitable laws against rebellious spirits; a treasury of most costly jewels against beggarly rudiments; finally, a fountain of most pure water springing up unto everlasting life. ... Happy is the man that delighteth in the Scripture, and thrice happy that meditateth in it day and night.

Could the men who penned the above words have sanctioned a corrupted translation of the Scriptures? Would they have cried, Tolle, lege, Tolle, lege, if John 1:29 had read thus, “Behold the Pig of God, which taketh away the sin of the world?” If the “fountain of most pure water” had been polluted by enemies of the Word in such a way, I am quite certain that the KJV translators would have cursed that version for blasphemy, and cast it into the fire. It is truly absurd for Mincy to think that the KJV translators humoured wicked versions. Indeed the Puritans among the KJV translators appealed to the king for a new English Bible because the Bible as found in the Communion book was according to them, “a most corrupted translation.” Evidently, corrupt translations did not sit well with them at all.

The question remains: Did the KJV translators really say that the “worst” versions are acceptable? They certainly did not. Mincy’s quotation of the KJV translators is taken from Rhodes and Lupas’s paraphrase (published by the American Bible Society in 1997) of their original statement. It is obvious that Rhodes and Lupas felt quite free to change the original intent of those words, taking them out of context. How did the original version read especially in context?

Now to the latter we answer, that we do not deny, nay, we affirm and avow, that the very meanest translation of the Bible in English set forth by men of our profession (for we have seen none of theirs of the whole Bible as yet) containeth the word of God, nay, is the word of God: as the King’s speech which he uttered in parliament, being translated into French, Dutch, Italian, and Latin, is still the King’s speech, though it be not interpreted by every translator with the like grace, ...

It is clear that by the word “meanest” they did not mean “worst” (ie, “evil in the highest degree”). Who would dare mistranslate the king’s speech? Clearly they were not talking about sense but style. By “meanest” they meant poor in literary grace. When beginning Greek students translate their Greek Bible into English, it may be rough and wooden; but if literal and precise, it is the Word of God.

“The Changing King James Version,” by Mark R Simmons

In this chapter, Simmons ridicules KJV-only advocates by setting up a straw man. He calls KJV-only advocates overly simplistic for believing that the actual “1611” KJV is the “preserved” Word of God (161). Of course, no right thinking KJV defender would say that. First, KJV-only advocates believe that the preserved text is the Hebrew and Greek text that underlies the KJV. The Masoretic Hebrew Old Testament (Ben Chayyim edition, 1524-5), and the Greek Textus Receptus (Beza's 5th edition, 1598) on which the KJV is based are the preserved Old Testament, and New Testament text respectively. Second, when KJV defenders say they uphold the KJV of 1611, they do not mean the exact 1611 edition. KJV defenders like their detractors know that the KJV currently in print is the 1769 edition. The KJV was originally published in the year 1611. To identify certain things by their year of origination is common practice. For example, Biblical Theological Seminary was founded in the year 1971. It was not known as "Biblical Theological Seminary" at that time but "Biblical School of Theology." When there was a name change in 1978, did the school also change its year of establishment? Of course not! It remained 1971. Likewise, to refer to the present edition of the KJV as the KJV of 1611 is neither unusual, nor deceptive; it simply reflects history.

Simmons exaggerates when he says that the KJV is "extremely difficult" to understand because "over four thousand words in the King James Bible are not found in even the best of our one volume English dictionaries today" (153). There are just about 200 archaic words in the KJV, and most of these words can be found in our Webster's, Oxford, and Chambers dictionaries. The recently published Defined King James Bible, edited by Dr D A Waite and his son, has footnoted the modern meaning of all archaic words in the KJV. There is really no excuse now not to use the KJV just because some of its words are archaic.

Anti-KJVists often ridicule the use of the "thees" and "thous" in the KJV, simply because these archaic pronouns are no longer common today. But is this a good reason to abandon the KJV? In an article entitled, "Is a Pronominal Revision of the Authorised Version Desirable?," Dr Oswald T Allis wrote,

It is a well-known fact that in contemporary English the forms thou, thy, thine have almost disappeared from secular use. They are largely restricted to the language of religious devotion, in which they are constantly employed, and which is largely formed by, and owes its peculiarities to, the Authorised Version. Consequently, it is often asserted or assumed that the usage of the AV represents the speech of 300 years ago, and that now, three centuries later, it should be changed to accord with contemporary usage. But this is not at all a correct statement of the problem. The important fact is this. The usage of the AV is not the ordinary usage of the early seventeenth century: it is the Biblical usage based on the style of the Hebrew and Greek Scriptures. The second part of this statement needs no proof and will be challenged by no one. It is undeniable that where the Hebrew and Greek use the singular of the pronoun the AV regularly uses the singular, and where they use the plural it uses the plural. Even in Deuteronomy where in his addresses, and apparently for rhetorical and pedagogical effect, Moses often changes suddenly, and seemingly arbitrarily, from singular to plural or from plural to singular, the AV reproduces the style of the text with fidelity. That is to say, the usage of the AV is strictly Biblical.

If the fundamentalists who wrote From the Mind of God to the Mind of Man believe in verbal inspiration, they should be quick to defend the use of the “archaic” pronouns of the KJV which accurately render in English the singular and plural pronouns of the Hebrew and Greek Scriptures. It would indeed be a contradiction in faith and practice for them to consider the “thees” and the “thous” to be unimportant and insignificant.

Simmons also makes a big deal out of the many revisions of the KJV (156-165). The KJV of 1611 went through a number of revisions soon after publication but all of which were completed in 1629. The revisions that occurred between 1611 and 1629 were due to printing errors. These errors were corrected by the KJV translators themselves, namely Samuel Ward and John Bois. In the course of typesetting, the printers had inadvertently left out words or phrases; all such typographical errors were corrected. Another revision of the KJV was done between 1762 and 1769. This revision had to do with spelling. For example, old forms which had an “e” after verbs, and “u” instead of “v,” and “f” for “s” were all standardised to conform to modern spelling. For example, “feare” is “fear,” “mooued” is “moved,” and “euill” is “evil,” and “alfo,” is “also.” All these Gothic and German spelling peculiarities have been Romanised by 1769. It is important to note that the 1769 edition is essentially the same as the 1611.

“English Versions Since 1880,” by J Drew Conley

Conley in his article cast KJV-only advocates in a bad light. Quoting the KJV translators who said that the Bible should be translated into the language of the common man, he obliquely accused those who insist that the “archaic” KJV alone is the acceptable English Bible for hiding God’s Word from people just like the Romanists in days gone by (187-9). Conley argues that the profound changes in English since the 1600s has caused many words in the KJV to come up blank in the reader's thinking—or worse, misunderstood ... And when the text is the Bible, lack of understanding does spiritual harm. ... For me to expect members of the congregation—especially new converts—to devote themselves to profitable study of a Bible in an unfamiliar language is certainly wishful thinking at best” (183).

Conley's concern over the “understandability” of the KJV is well taken, but his solution to the difficulty is a step backwards, not forwards. For young believers, it is not just the archaisms in the Bible that may pose some difficulty, but also the many hard theological terms. How should the pastor advise the young believer? Use the NIV, or TEV, or CEV, or RSV, or NASB, or the Living Bible? This would be like giving a baby milk laced with cyanide! Conley rightly says that the pastor has a duty “to communicate God's truth so others understand” (192). He continues,

There are words of such great theological significance that they should never be replaced. A preacher should define them, explain them, and illustrate them so that others can make them their own. Justification, sanctification, glorification, propitiation, atonement, reconciliation, understood by few except those who have been taught the gospel, have been too precisely defined over the years to abandon them without grave consequences” (192).

If pastors have a duty to explain all those important theological terms to their congregation so that they might understand, why cannot they do the same for the archaic words in the KJV? Furthermore, why cannot the young believer be taught to use the dictionary to locate the meaning of those words, or better still, why cannot the pastor present to him a copy of The Defined King James Bible? Why should the young Christian be told to throw out his KJV and get an NIV or some other perversion of the Bible just because of some old words?

The excuse not to use the KJV because it contains archaic words is really quite flimsy. When we read a modern book, do we not find words that we do not understand? When we encounter such difficulties in our reading, what do we do? Throw the book away? or hit the dictionary? We go to the dictionary. We search for the meaning, and we become the wiser for it. We are not fools are we? Why should God's Word in the KJV be treated so disrespectfully, that when we come across difficult terms, it is beneath us to turn the dictionary? Should modern English versions be preferred over the KJV? Dr Robert B Alter (PhD, Harvard) in 1996, wrote, “Modern English versions put readers at a grotesque distance from the ... Bible. To this day, the Authorized Version of 1611 (the “King James Bible”) ... for all its archaisms ... remains the closest we have yet come to the distinctive experience of the original.” Therefore, stick to the KJV, and use the dictionary!

The neo-evangelical spirit that pervades this book—From the Mind of God to the Mind of Man—is clearly seen in Conley’s approach to the versions. One would think Conley, a fundamentalist pastor, would be careful to guide his sheep to the right pasture with regard to the versions. Instead, we find him saying that his chapter is not “intended to be a critique or a recommendation of any version” (195). He will not tell the layman (and mind you, this book is supposed to be a guide for the layman) which version is good and which is bad. As God’s under-shepherd, he is telling the Lord’s sheep, “There are weeds, thistles, and grass out there. I do not wish to tell you where to go, or what to eat; just go take your pick.” But wait, Conley does not do even that. In a footnote, he recommends the following versions which he says “are valuable for serious Bible study” (195): the Revised Version, American Standard Version and the New American Standard Bible (NASB). Note that all three are based on the corrupt text of Westcott and Hort. In a whisper, he tells the sheep, “Go eat the weeds and the thistles.” It is thus no surprise that Conley writes sympathetically of the liberal and ecumenical Revised Standard Version (RSV). He quotes without any refutation that the RSV embodies “the best results of modern scholarship” (198). He quotes the RSV as saying that the KJV has “grave defects” without any rebuttal whatsoever, except for a cowardly parenthetical remark, “their words, not mine” (198).

What is truly troubling is Conley’s tacit approval of the RSV’s heterodox translation of the $\text{\`a} \text{\`O}$ ('almah) of Isa 7:14 as “young woman” instead of “virgin” (199). He justifies the RSV by pointing out that Matthew’s quotation of Isa 7:14 in the RSV reads “virgin.” Why did Conley not defend the orthodox translation of Isa 7:14 as found in the KJV over against the RSV? Perhaps Conley holds to the neo-evangelical view that Isa 7:14 has two fulfillments: one in the time of Isaiah, and the other in the time of Christ. If Conley does allow for such a translation and interpretation of Isa 7:14, he is no fundamentalist. It is well known that in 1952, when the RSV was released, fundamentalist scholars took the RSV to task for its heretical treatment of Isa 7:14. Conley must surely know this, yet he does not seem to care.

If Conley is sympathetic to the RSV, he is enthusiastic about the NASB. He says the NASB incorporates the gains made by the discoveries of additional manuscripts (ie, Alexandrian manuscripts) ... and has thus proven of great value in discerning the underlying text. To some its strength carries with it a weakness—that of falling short of a smooth English style. Others fault it, along with almost all the modern versions for the Greek textual family it uses. Neither charge is totally fair to this excellent tool for Bible study” (201).

Conley tells his readers that he will neither recommend nor critique, but does not his remarks about the NASB sound like a recommendation? The layman would do well to note that the NASB, though rather literal, is unreliable because it is based on the corrupt Westcott and Hort text.

If the layman wants to find guidance on which English versions are reliable and which are not, he would do well to skip Conley, and find it somewhere else. One good source is A Brief History of English Bible Translations by Laurence M Vance.

“Conclusion: The Response to These Facts,” by Keith E Gephart

Gephart reiterates the aim of the book which is to fault certain fundamentalists for taking a pro-KJV or KJV-only position. He says, “As always, Fundamentalism’s greatest difficulties are caused by those within its own ranks who by some actions, statements, or doctrinal positions bring embarrassment and unnecessary discord” (211). Such rhetoric is no different from that of Ahab to Elijah, “Art thou he that troubleth Israel?” (1 Kgs 18:17).” Like Elijah we reply, “I have not troubled Israel; but thou, and thy father’s house, in that ye have forsaken the commandments of the LORD, and thou hast followed Baalim” (1 Kgs 18:18). KJV-only advocates have been faithful to the Hebrew and Greek texts God has inspired and preserved down through the ages. Pan-Versionists like Gephart have shunted from the traditional and preserved text to embrace the modernist and critical text of Westcott and Hort, the UBS, and NA. The old, conservative textual line began in the time of the Apostles, and preserved all through the centuries by God, culminating in the Textus Receptus of the 16th century Reformation. This line continued until Satan introduced a new, modernistic line in the Westcott and Hort text of 19th century liberalism. Know that the 19th century was a time of great unbelief when new-fangled “isms” like Evolutionism, Liberalism, Freudianism, Marxism, and Ecumenism came into being. It looks like modern fundamentalists instead of traveling on the “good old gospel train,” have hopped onto the new and seductive Westcott-Hort train which will only lead to unbelief and apostasy. Hills has rightly warned that those who take an eclectic view of providential preservation of Scriptures (ie, the Textus Receptus is good, but so is Westcott and Hort; the KJV is good, but so are all the modern versions) “are logically on [their] way toward the denial of the infallible inspiration of the Scriptures.” Let me also repeat the good advice of Martin:

The only road to progress in New Testament textual criticism is repudiation of their (ie, Westcott and Hort) theory and all its fruits. Most contemporary criticism is bankrupt and confused, the result of its liaison with liberal theology. A Bible-believing Christian can never be content to follow the leadership of those who do not recognize the Bible as the verbally inspired Word of God. The Textus Receptus is the starting-point for future research, because it embodies substantially and in a convenient form the traditional text.

Gephart enjoins all his readers to be like the noble Bereans who searched the Scriptures (214). Yes, it is vitally important for all true theologues to search the Scriptures. However, it is equally important also for them to ensure that the Scriptures they search from is truly the Word of God, accurately and faithfully translated from the original. The reason is plain and simple: If you are not reading from a pure and unadulterated Word, you will not find the truth for which you seek.

Let me give an example. In the KJV, Ps 12:6-7 reads, “The words of the LORD are pure words: as silver tried in a furnace of earth, purified seven times. Thou shalt keep them O LORD, thou shalt preserve them from this generation for ever.” It is very clear from this text that God has promised to preserve His Word: He will keep and preserve “them,” ie, His “words” (v6). But in the NIV, we find something quite different, “And the words of the LORD are flawless, like silver refined in a furnace of clay, purified seven times. O LORD, you will keep us safe and protect us from such people forever.” Note the change from “keep them” and “preserve them” (KJV) to “keep us” and “protect us” (NIV). The NIV changed the pronouns from the third person plural (“them”) to the first person plural (“us”). The NIV has changed the Word of God here. In the Hebrew text, the first word is ʾem (tishmerem). The -em suffix is third plural, “them,” not “us.” He will keep “them” (so KJV) is correct. The second word is ʾem (titzrennu). The -ennu suffix is third singular with the energetic nun, meaning literally, “every one of them,” and not “us.” We therefore find Ps 12:6-7 teaching us that God will preserve His Word as a whole (plenary preservation), and His Word in its parts (verbal preservation). But the NIV by way of a “dynamic” (read “demonic”) method has corrupted the text, and by so doing, removed the doctrine of Bible preservation from the Scriptures. By all means, search the Scriptures, but make sure you search from the right one!

Gephart accuses KJV-only advocates of “pride and prejudice” (215). He behaves very much like David’s eldest brother—Eliab—who scolded David for wanting to fight the Philistine giant—Goliath. David wanted to defend God’s name, but Eliab rebuked him saying, “I know thy pride, and the naughtiness of thine heart; for thou art come down that thou mightest see the battle” (1 Sam 17:28). This same charge is now leveled against KJV-only fundamentalists by their fellows. We reply with David, “What have I now done? Is there not a cause?” (1 Sam 17:29). Indeed, there is! There is a battle for truth to be fought today. It is against the Westcott-Hort Goliath! Are you a David, or an Eliab?

If the fundamentalists of this book—From the Mind of God to the Mind of Man—will not hear us, then let them hear from Dr Ian Paisley who is a friend of BJU and a prominent leader of the World Congress of Fundamentalists:

I believe the Bible is the verbally inspired Word of the living God and because the Authorised Version is a faithful English translation of the original Hebrew of the Old Testament and the original Greek of the New Testament, it is the very Word of God in my mother tongue. Being a translation does not alter one iota of its integrity, inerrancy and infallibility as God’s Word. ...

I believe this English Authorized Version is unsurpassably pre-eminent over and above all other English translations, because like the blessed Joseph there rests upon it the blessing of the heavens above and of the deep that lieth under (Genesis 49:25).

I cry out “There is none like that, give it me,” and in so doing I nail the Satanic lie that the Authorized Version is outdated, outmoded, mistranslated, a relic of the past and only defended by stupid, unlearned, untaught obscurantists.

BOB JONES UNIVERSITY AND THE KJV

As its deriders and revilers pass on to the judgment of the thrice holy God whose revelation they despise, the Old Book,

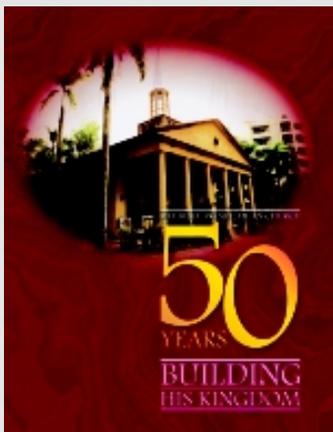

“Incomparable in its faithfulness, majestic in its language, and inexhaustible in its spiritual fruitfulness, continues to reveal to millions the matchless grace of Him whose name is THE WORD OF GOD, and who is crowned with glory and honour.”

I believe this Book will always be the unsurpassable pre-eminent English version of the Holy Bible and no other can ever take its place.

To seek to dislodge this Book from its rightful pre-eminent place is the act of the enemy, and what is attempted to put in its place is an intruder - an imposter - a pretender - a usurper.

We plead with BJU and fellow fundamentalists who love God and His Word to defend the KJV, and defend it only. “Shouldest thou help the ungodly, and love them that hate the Lord?” (2 Chr 19:1-2). Be like David who had the mind of God to fight Goliath. If we have the mind of God, we must also have the heart of God: “Do not I hate them, O LORD, that hate thee? And am not I grieved with those that rise up against thee? I hate them with perfect hatred: I count them mine enemies” (Ps 139:21-22).

This paper was presented to the Fundamental Christian Ministry in its combined meeting of August 21, 2000, held at Life Bible-Presbyterian Church.

Life Bible-Presbyterian Church, 9A Gilstead Road, Singapore, celebrates its 50th Thanksgiving Anniversary (1950-2000). This golden jubilee magazine records the history of its founding and exploits to the glory of God. For those interested to know more about the Bible-Presbyterian movement in Singapore and beyond, get your copy from:

FEBBC BOOKROOM

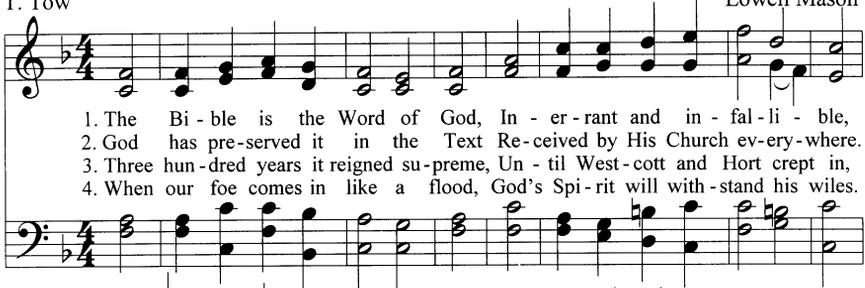

Tel: 254-9188, Fax: 250-6955
febcbkrm@singnet.com.sg

The King James Bible vs. The Hundred Versions

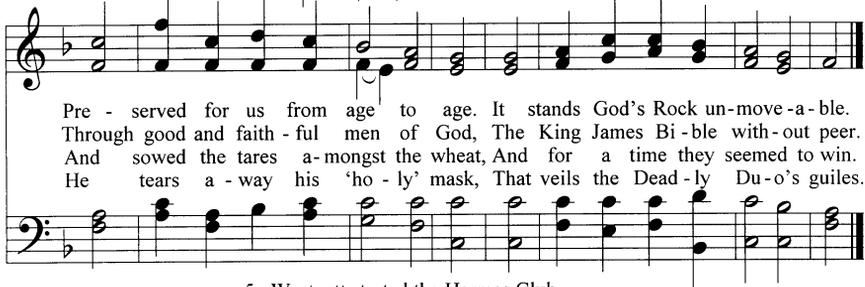

T. Tow

UXBRIDGE L. M.

Lowell Mason

1. The Bi - ble is the Word of God, In - er - rant and in - fal - li - ble,
2. God has pre - served it in the Text Re - ceived by His Church ev - ery - where.
3. Three hun - dred years it reigned su - preme, Un - til West - cott and Hort crept in,
4. When our foe comes in like a flood, God's Spi - rit will with - stand his wiles.

Pre - served for us from age to age. It stands God's Rock un - move - a - ble.
Through good and faith - ful men of God, The King James Bi - ble with - out peer.
And sowed the tares a - mongst the wheat, And for a time they seemed to win.
He tears a - way his 'ho - ly' mask, That veils the Dead - ly Du - o's guiles.

5. Westcott started the Hermes Club,
Reputed Homosexuals Den.
He branched to delve into the dead,
A Ghost Club and Bogey by name.
6. With Hort his closest Siamese Twin,
He worshipped Mary in secret.
They found in Darwin and in Freud
Good friends so sincere and so sweet.
7. But they called Christians fanatics.
They denied Jesus' Virgin Birth,
His Blood and His Resurrection,
Creation and Fall but a myth.
8. Who shall ascend my holy hill?
He that has clean hands and pure heart.
With unclean hands and heart impure,
Can Westcott and Hort have a part?
9. An influx of hundred versions
By Westcott and Hort's corrupt text,
Shall never stand up to the test,
That makes King James Bible the best.
10. The Bible is the Word of God,
Inerrant and infallible.
Preserved for us from age to age,
It stands God's Rock unmoveable.

DEATH IN THE POT!

Timothy Tow

So they poured out for the men to eat. And it came to pass, as they were eating of the pottage, that they cried out, and said, O thou man of God, there is death in the pot. And they could not eat thereof. But he said, Then bring meal. And he cast it into the pot; and he said, Pour out for the people, that they may eat. And there was no harm in the pot (2 Kgs 4:40-41).

For 300 years the King James Bible (Authorised Version) reigned supreme until two Cambridge Greek scholars, Westcott and Hort, arose to challenge it in 1870. As a result of their machinations, they got it revised in 1881. So a new version, the Revised Version was produced, which changed ten thousand of the sacred text. (But the Revised Version, while it enjoyed a good sale at first, has for long died a diseased death.) Nevertheless, Westcott and Hort enjoyed the full confidence of the Church and their word was law. They took away the account of Jesus pardoning the woman taken in adultery (John 7:53-8:11) as no part of John's Gospel but a later interpolation (insertion by another hand). They cut away the last 12 verses of Mark and the Johannine Comma, where the Trinity is taught (1 John 5:7,8). These are three glaring examples.

When I was a student in Faith Seminary, 1948, we were taught to accept everything Westcott and Hort had taught. When Dr D A Waite, ThD, PhD was in Dallas Seminary, 1948, he also was taught to receive everything that Westcott and Hort had given. But truth will out! God raised up a theological student, Edward F Hills (1912-81), a classmate of Dr Carl McIntire at Westminster Seminary, to research into Westcott and Hort. Edward F Hills, BTh, ThM, and ThD (Harvard Divinity School), having studied for over 15 years, raised the alarm, "Death in the pot." The teachings of Westcott and Hort is poison to our souls!

With this alarm raised, other eminent theologians who are on the Lord's side has joined his ranks, one by one, namely Dr Otis Fuller, Dr D A Waite, David W Cloud, G A Riplinger (author of New Age Bible Versions), Dr S H Tow and now the whole faculty of Far Eastern Bible College, not forgetting the venerable Trinitarian Bible Society of Great Britain.

Who shall ascend into the hill of the LORD? or who shall stand in his holy place? He that hath clean hands, and a pure heart; who hath not lifted up his soul unto vanity, nor sworn deceitfully (Ps 24:3,4).

Hitherto, we have been hoodwinked by a conspiracy of silence on the evil character of Westcott and Hort, these two angels of light in textual criticism, until the recent exposure of their true colours. The records of the sons of Westcott and Hort, above all others, testify to their shame.

Westcott was founder of the Hermes Club in Cambridge, a Club that was reputed to be a homosexual club. Three years later, together with Hort and others, he branched into the Ghost Club, which scoffers called the Bogey Club. Bogey means devil. They delved into necromancy, which is communicating with the dead. This is an abomination to the Lord (Deut 18:11). Both Westcott and Hort were secret worshippers of Mary. They were friends of Darwin, Freud (called a Fraud in The Straits Times) and of Carl Jung, all enemies of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ. They denied the infallibility and inerrancy of Scripture, the Virgin Birth of Christ, His blood atonement and resurrection. The Creation and Temptation that led to the Fall they derisively declared to be myths.

With impure hearts of rebellion against God and unclean, unconverted hands, how dared they touch the sacred Text of Holy Scripture? The ten thousand alterations and deletions they had made on the basis of Codex Sinaiticus and Codex Vaticanus versus the thousands of the Majority Text resulted in the scissoring of the equivalent of First and Second Peter. In so doing, they had cut themselves from the Lord who bought them (2 Pet 2:1). Those who follow Westcott and Hort in taking away Scripture beware, “God shall take away his part out of the book of life...” (Rev 22:19). What more can we say of the hundred “perversions” that are based on Westcott and Hort? They are already corrupted at the source.

As to judging between KJB and the one hundred “perversions,” the unanimous testimony of believers throughout Church history, by the anointing of the Holy Spirit, suffices. Says the Apostle John,

But ye have an unction from the Holy One, and ye know all things ... But the anointing which ye have received of him abideth in you, and ye need not that any man teach you: but as the same anointing teacheth you of all things, and is truth, and is no lie, and even as it hath taught you, ye shall abide in him” (1 John 2:20, 27).

DEATH IN THE POT!

Let us take, for example, John 3:16, the most repeated verse in the Bible. The KJB renders monogenes as only begotten, but the NIV as one and only, clipping out the begotten. The doctrine of eternal generation of the Son, held time immemorial by the universal Church, is forever struck out by the NIV. By the anointing of the Holy Spirit you can judge between the KJB and NIV. You have the answer.

Although there is death in the pot, Elisha says, “Then bring meal.” And he cast it into the pot, and he said, “Pour out for the people that they may eat ... And there was no harm in the pot.” God is powerful over all evil. God gives Elisha the power to neutralise the poison in the pot. God has now raised an international witness for His Truth. The King James

Bible is the most accurate, devout English translation of the Bible and is now being restored against the 100 “perversions” of the English Bible—through fundamental scholars whom God has raised, men of integrity and men who love the Lord.

Today is a day of Victory for the Truth. My brother—Dr S H Tow— told me he had spent two years in research before he produced this 152-page book Beyond Versions to expose what is concealed in deceptive darkness. Please read it carefully and if you have been using the NIV or RSV, etc, cease taking their poison and be delivered from death in the pot. Use the KJB and rejoice in the Truth.

Rev Dr Timothy Tow is senior pastor of Life Bible-Presbyterian Church, and principal of Far Eastern Bible College.

GOSPEL STRATEGY FOR THE NEW MILLENNIUM

S H Tow

I invite you to please turn with me to the Book of Jeremiah Chapter 6 reading from verse 9 to 17.

Thus saith the LORD of hosts, They shall thoroughly glean the remnant of Israel as a vine: turn back thine hand as a grapegatherer into the baskets. To whom shall I speak, and give warning, that they may hear? behold, their ear is uncircumcised, and they cannot hearken: behold, the word of the LORD is unto them a reproach; they have no delight in it. For from the least of them even unto the greatest of them every one is given to covetousness; and from the prophet even unto the priest every one dealeth falsely. They have healed also the hurt of the daughter of my people slightly, saying, Peace, peace; when there is no peace. Were they ashamed when they had committed abomination? nay, they were not at all ashamed, neither could they blush: therefore they shall fall among them that fall: at the time that I visit them they shall be cast down, saith the LORD. Thus saith the LORD, Stand ye in the ways, and see, and ask for the old paths, where is the good way, and walk therein, and ye shall find rest for your souls. But they said, We will not walk therein. Also I set watchmen over you, saying, Hearken to the sound of the trumpet. But they said, We will not hearken.

It is with greatest joy that I address you this evening on the 38th year of the founding of this Bible College. So soon 38 years have flown by and very soon a new millennium dawns and with it, new dangers and challenges. Whether you like it or not, these will come upon us—a new social order, a new world order and a new church order—and things will never be the same again. Last December while we were in Canada, I read the newspapers how our SM Lee said:

A new age is coming on earth. Things are changing, the way we live, we think, we do business, we conduct ourselves, is changing. All because of the revolution brought about by that little microchip and the computer. Everything is changing and no matter how well you have been doing, how successful you have been, if you do not adapt to the changing situation, you will be left behind.

GOSPEL STRATEGY FOR THE NEW MILLENNIUM

The same word of wisdom applies to us. Things are changing so rapidly in the computer field, every few months what was good gets out of date and is cast aside. My friends, we are children of light and the darkness deepens and danger mounts. Let's ask ourselves, "What must we do?" Verse 16: "Thus saith the LORD, Stand ye in the ways, and see, and ask for the old paths." Here God gives us the formula, the direction for the future: "There is the good way, walk ye therein, and ye shall find rest for your souls." Verse 17 says, "Also I set watchmen over you ... hearken to the sound of the trumpet." What is the need of the hour today? As in these verses, we are clearly told that we are to ask for the old paths. We who serve the Lord, surely, the Lord knows our needs but we must always turn to Him. Of ourselves we can do nothing; we shall fall. Pray for faithful watchmen to be raised, men and women of the Word of God, filled with the spirit of God; men and women of prayer who daily are in touch with that power house from above, who heed the voice of the Master.

What does the Master say? "Thus saith the Lord." We must know what He says, not what the world says, not what the church says. Oh, it is a sad thing to note Christendom today has lost its way, fallen into the hands of the adversary. This was Jeremiah's concern in his day and I say this is our concern today. In God's service, as an ordinary member in the pew, whoever you are, if we name the name of Christ, we must know what Christ our Lord says every day or we shall lose our way.

Jeremiah was concerned. Are we concerned? We need faithful Jeremiahs today—men and women, prophets, watchmen, messengers—those willing to be used. I say to all young friends here studying, graduating; before you is a tremendous opportunity to prove the power of God. That power is not diminished today. If you follow the Lord and call upon him, He sends power from above that you may face the future and all its pitfalls and temptations that come your way. This college was raised for such a time as this, to train and equip watchmen. I like this word "watchman." I'd rather be a watchman in the house of God than to dwell in tents of wickedness. The watchman has a task assigned to him—you have to observe with your eyes, your ears, sometimes with your nose, and your business is to raise a warning. Now a watchman's task is not popular or easy but that is not our concern. Watchmen must be faithful. This is the need of the hour for we are put in trust by the Master. I say again to our friends who are going back to their churches or to the mission fields. Wherever you go throughout the four corners of this earth, your faithfulness means life and death to those you minister to. If you give the pure word of God, those who hear and heed will be delivered from death into life. It must not be otherwise.

“Thus saith the Lord” must be our one constant, unchanging message while the world around us changes. We have a Lord, Head of the Church, who is the same yesterday, today and forever. He never changes and He is our one constant point of reference. Keep going back to Him, to hear what He teaches, what He says in the Book and what His faithful servants the apostles say to us: make that your guide, nothing else.

Spreading deception is the order of the day today. In this new millennium so many new messages are coming in, new theologies. I remember what Spurgeon said a century ago: “You may rest assured, in theology there is nothing new except that which is false.” Please remember this. Someone has discovered a new exegesis, a new hermeneutic, a new theology—be careful, beware, always turn back to the verses we have read: “Thus saith the Lord” and remember what the Lord said 2,000 years ago stands today—changeless. Let us embrace that Word ... “Stand in the ways ... ask for the old paths, the good way ...”. Our duty is not to please the hearers, my friends. This is the problem today. Preachers are afraid to lose their congregations, to lose the support of those who send in the donations, if they preach a contrary message. God spare us from the curse of preaching for popularity.

The Word of God here says that He will come and false prophets will be cast down. Why? Because they said, “Peace, peace, when there is no peace.” Now how are we to understand this? I speak as a medical person. The patient is suffering from cancer and doctors prescribe lotions and band-aid treatment. My friends, these preachers are sending precious souls to eternal damnation in hell. The perils of the new millennium call for raising of more faithful watchmen. Are you one? Ask yourself—do you know the issues? Do you know what is right and wrong? Do you know a false prophet from a true one? A false teacher? Can you smell him out? I trust that in your time at this college, you have learnt this and learnt it well. If you didn’t learn a tremendous amount of theology, at least you learnt one thing—to discern truth from error and then to stand by the truth, come what may. Nothing must move you from the truth. Why? Because it is the truth and only the truth can save; only the truth can set you free, only the truth can establish the church, and save souls into God's kingdom.

So, may you all be watchmen, faithful, filled with the Spirit, with prayer, daily watching, waiting unto the coming again of the great God—our Saviour Jesus Christ. Does He cause you to look up and your heart to leap up? “Behold He comes!” is something we must expect any moment, any time, in our life time – are you ready? May this thought constantly spur us on that we may never turn back, never slow down but keep pressing on, “forgetting those things which are behind ... press toward the mark for the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus.”

Now just a few specifics: the things you ought to know as a watchman. You ought to know that is happening. Why? Because God has called you to be a watchman. Did it occur to you that today's evangelical preaching almost never touches on sin and repentance? Observe those who preach over television and radio. How often do you hear the message of repentance? But rather those people talk much about love and unity, about “Holy Spirit and salvation,” “healing and renewal,” words without meaning. But repentance and restitution are rarely mentioned. What must we do? Dear friends, these are realities which you face. You are going to meet those who have been nurtured in apostate churches. They are going to come to you. What do you tell them? “Ask for the old paths.” Let us constantly return to the old paths and say “Repent ye.” This is the message of John the Baptist, the Lord Jesus Christ and Peter the Apostle on the day of Pentecost. What did they preach? “Repent, for the Kingdom of God is at hand.” There is no other way to enter the Kingdom except to repent and to make restitution. “Repent ye for the Kingdom is at hand,” was what John the Baptist said, “Who hath warned you to flee from the wrath to come? Bring forth therefore fruits meet for repentance” (Matt 3:7b-8).

Did it occur to you that nowadays, the popular preaching of heaven and hell is totally changed. What is heaven? Heaven is now defined as a place where God is calling people out of every religion, and those who hear the call, see the light and follow, they will arrive in heaven. This is a strange heaven not found in the Bible. Do you realise that?

Listen, the Word of God says, “And there shall in no wise enter into it any thing that defileth ... but they which are written in the Lamb's book of life” (Rev 21:27). There is no exception, no deviation, no way you can bypass this. Remember what our Lord said: “I am the way ... no man cometh unto the Father but by me.” No other way, only one: Jesus Christ.

Now what about hell? The leading evangelicals are changing their view of hell—Billy Graham, John Stott, J I Packer and others. Now, there are many versions of hell. Listen carefully: firstly, hell is a state of mind and not a place; hell is longlasting but not forever; hell is hot but not so hot; hell is a real place, but there is no one in it. Now these new teachings are coming out of evangelicalism into the church of God and people are gleefully embracing them. Wonderful! Now who is afraid of hell? Listen, ask for the old paths “Thus saith the Lord.” “The fearful, and unbelieving, and the abominable (those who twist and turn doctrine) ... whoremongers ... sorcerers ... idolaters (those who go to church and bow to images) ... all liars (who preach the new evangelicalism—these are liars),” the Word of God says, “shall have their part in the lake which burneth with fire and brimstone: which is the second death” (Rev 21:8). Now, that is hell. Why don’t we go by the Word of God? Why go by books that are written today?

“Evangelical Truth” it is called. In it John Stott says, “How can hell have a fire that burns and destroys and yet those who go in are never destroyed!” Amazing new evangelical doctrine!

Today the call to all Christendom is, “Love and unite!” In 1995 the Pope issued his Twelfth Encyclical. (An encyclical means a directive to all humanity with particular reference to the churches.) He says “I speak as the head of the church. All Christendom return to mother church!” When? By the year 2000. When? By the end of this year. Now what do you say to that? God’s Word says “No.” That is the doctrine of the devil.

But the Word of God says, “Come out from among them, and be ye separate ... and touch not the unclean thing” (2 Cor 6:17). What is the unclean thing? Today, the whole world is uniting to form a One World System. Now this is prophetic—you cannot stop it. It is irresistible and indeed it is now almost ready to function—one world, one church. God’s Word says, “Come out ... be ye separate ... touch not ... I will receive you. And I will be a Father unto you, and ye shall be my sons and daughters” (2 Cor 6:17-18). This is the word of God. Do you know it? Do you obey it?

A couple of people, last week when I was in Kuala Lumpur preaching at Calvary Jaya Church, came up to me and said, “We come from a

GOSPEL STRATEGY FOR THE NEW MILLENNIUM

Methodist Church. Is the Methodist Church supporting this ecumenical movement?" Indeed it is one of the front runners leading people into this One World System. "But what can I do? In our town, there is no other church." Very difficult! What do you do—come out of her and have no church? So these are things we have to think, to find solutions. I say as long as you are in that church, cling to the Saviour, call out to Him and have no part in that One World System. Then you are safe, and even out of that church you can be saved. Why? Because there is no other church to go to. But you must take a stand on the truth of God's Word and do not support the One World System.

The New Millennium brings in a new Christianity—so different, with "another gospel, another Jesus." It is by God's grace that we have come thus far in the B-P Church, 50 years. You know this year is the golden anniversary, and when you have 50 years behind you, you can look back and size up the whole situation with what we call "hindsight."

When we started in Prinsep Street we used to have OMF missionaries come to us and together we could preach the same gospel. Today, no longer. OMF missionaries preach another gospel, so different. Time has changed many things and the New Millennium is bringing in a New Christianity paving the way for the New World Order—the order set up by the god of this world, predicted in the Word of God, that must come to pass but of which you ought not have a part. I realise that some of you come from non-fundamental churches, from various churches in the mainline denominations like Methodist, Anglican, Baptist, Lutheran and so on. What must you do? I say you should pray and heed the Word of God. If you are convinced and you are called, God will show you what you ought to do.

Verse 13: It says in Jeremiah's time "from the least unto the greatest, everyone is given to covetousness; and from the prophets even unto the priest every one dealeth falsely." It is a sad thing when religion is made commercial. How can it be? Oh yes, it is being done. Indulgences are being sold. Last January the Pope announced a special discount for indulgences to commemorate the year 2000. Religion at a discount? Wonderful! Let us buy more indulgences for future use. This is called "forward buying."

What about "healings and miracles?" You think they are cheap? They are not cheap because when a person gets so low in his sick state, and hoping for a cure, money pours into the healers' offering bags. Today,

Benny Hinn, front runner and successor to Kathleen Kuhlman, is building a Healing Park in the States for US$30M. For what? For healing! “All who are sick come along and we will heal you.” This is the greatest hoax and lie. Easily proved—they can do the healing on stage, in the park, but take them to the hospital and they can’t even heal one, not even one. My friends, you want to challenge these people who claim signs and wonders and healings? Just say, “Follow me to the Chronic Sick Ward now, heal, let me see, heal.” It just doesn’t happen. It only happens on stage. They have their props—part of the show. What deception! My friends, this is the high cost of healing today. Benny Hinn’s 25th anniversary—to celebrate with him people pay $100 a plate to sit there and listen to this great deceiver and false prophet. As in Jeremiah’s day religious leaders are given to covetousness and deception. These things are happening and you ought to know. Did not Jeremiah say that “every one is given to covetousness, from the prophet to the priest, every one dealeth falsely.”

Now what gospel strategy do we have for the New Millennium? We fundamentalists are called “bigots, backward, uninformed!” My friends, care not what people call you. It is what you are and how you serve the Lord that counts, not what people falsely say about you. What do you say to this? I say, “Back to the Word of God—Stand ye in the ways, and see, and ask for the old paths, the good way”—the unchanging Word of God, the unchanging pathway of God. Today our strategy for the new millennium is “Back to the Bible, know your Word, King James Version.” Notice every modern English version attacks some vital central doctrine of the Bible and all claim to be “most accurate, most authentic”—a lie of the devil. Why? Did not Jeremiah say “covetousness, and deception?” Modern Versions bring to the publishers and copyright owners multi-millions of dollars. You know that? Ah, my friends, religion today is commercialised. Latest: Pat Robertson is marketing a new Bible called “The Book.” On publicity alone he spends US$7M in anticipation of huge profits coming ahead. Make no mistake: commercial religion reigns today. What must we do?

Back to the Bible, the good old King James Bible! Back to God’s greatest salvation, the Reformation of the 16th century! Today, it is submerged, blacked out, nobody ever hears anything about the Reformation. Today it is a bad word. Let us go back to God’s greatest salvation since Pentecost, when God’s people rallied with the war cry: Sola Scriptura! Sola Fide! Sola Gratia! Solus Christus! Only these are sufficient for all our needs and our message. So, I say, for the New Millennium: back to the grand simplicity of the gospel. Be not entangled with all the new fangled doctrines, new styles of worship, new music, new music idioms, all kinds of fantasies, words of wisdom, words of knowledge, direct revelations from God—all these are tricks of the devil. Back to the old fashioned gospel and tell it as it is. Know the Word – there is power in the Word. Give it as it is and see if God will not honour this simple faith in His wonderful Word.

GOSPEL STRATEGY FOR THE NEW MILLENNIUM

Be a Jeremiah. Jeremiah preached for 40 long years to a stiffnecked, rebellious people. Jeremiah never gave up but he wept for his people. He was a true patriot, one who felt for his people. Do you feel for your people? Was there any time you wept for your people because they are in sin?

Be a Jeremiah: “Ask for the old paths, where is the good way, and walk therein, and ye shall find rest for your souls.” Amen.

Dr S H Tow is senior pastor of Calvary Bible-Presbyterian Church. This sermon was delivered at the 25th Graduation Service of the Far Eastern Bible College at Life Bible-Presbyterian Church, May 14, 2000.

AMAZING LOVE: A Personal Testimony (ISBN 981-04-0748-3) by Julie Khoo is full of true-life stories. The author tells her personal experiences of growing up in Singapore, and what she has learnt through them. It records her journey of discovering and experiencing love and happiness despite the odds and difficulties, and her thoughts and reflections on certain important issues in life. What is life like for young people in a meritocratic Singapore? More importantly, what is the meaning of life? This moving book provides answers from a Christian perspective. Get your copy for only $3 from:

FEB C BOOKROOM

Tel: 254-9188, Fax: 250-6955
febcbkrm@singnet.com.sg

BIBLICAL MOTHERHOOD (I): THE ROLE OF CHRISTIAN WOMEN IN CONTEMPORARY SINGAPORE SOCIETY

Carol Lee

Introduction

In recent years, the rate of juvenile delinquency in Singapore has risen significantly “from 425 to 582 cases per hundred thousand for the population aged seven to 16 between 1989 and 1998.”¹ Sociologists are concerned as to what the causes of this rising trend are, and how it can be arrested.

Prime Minister Goh Chok Tong in the National Day message on 21 August 1994 attributed many of the ills of society to the media. It is possible for the media to have a grip on the child when parents or grandparents are not available in the home and the media is used as a babysitter as it becomes the transmitter of values to the child. Dana Lam, the President of the Association of Women for Action and Research (AWARE), commenting on the Singapore work culture as a factor in straining family relationships, considered that Singaporeans “work far too hard, sometimes at the expense of our other roles as father, mother, brother, sister, child.”² The part played by the home is a major influential factor in these two instances.

The Church is not spared the problems of society as Christians are not only members of the Church, they function as members of society and are as affected by the societal problems as non-Christians. The problem of the increasing rate of juvenile delinquency is also experienced in Christian homes. Just as secular helping organisations look into solving this problem, Christians too must consider what is happening in their homes and the dangers that society is posing to Christian homes. Christians must be aware of how society is affecting their homes and look for biblical solutions.

BIBLICAL MOTHERHOOD (I)

It is inevitable therefore that in looking for solutions to the problem of juvenile delinquency the part played by the family and in particular the role of the mother are to be considered as the family is the child's first nurturing institution and the mother the child's first nurturing individual. The purpose of this paper is therefore to look at the biblical role of the Christian mother in contemporary Singapore society and the biblical principles by which she can be guided into the fulfilment of that role.

The issue of the role of women in general has been much debated upon and much has been written on it. It is a sensitive issue and emotions can run high in the cause of debate or discussion. It is necessary therefore to enumerate the presuppositions of this paper so that this work may be read and understood within these parameters.

First, this paper is written primarily from a Singaporean Christian and biblical perspective and is therefore practical and applicable from that standpoint. As such, the Singapore society at large may not find itself agreeable to what is commented on or suggested in this paper as it is not bound to abide by biblical guidelines. The Christian, however, having been regenerated by the Holy Spirit, has his spiritual eyes opened and is given the ability to comprehend and to put into practice the guidelines as taught in the Bible (Luke 8:10, 24:45).

Second, the understanding of, and willingness to accept as biblical, the biblical guidelines that are raised in this paper, is of greater primary importance than the Christian's perception of his ability, or even his actual ability, to apply those guidelines. If the Christian sees the Word of God as holding ultimate authority, he must then constantly rely on the strength of the Holy Spirit to help him obey God's Word and to subdue the desires of his own flesh (Matt 26:41, Rom 7:19) in his pursuit of a life that is pleasing and glorifying to his Lord and Saviour knowing that the process of sanctification is a lifelong process (Rom 12:1-2). It is to be acknowledged that the expectations of society on women in general make it extremely difficult for the Christian woman, in particular, to abide by the biblical teaching. The subtle temptation is to rationalise the biblical teachings to fit societal expectations and to live respectably in the eyes of society than in the eyes of God.

The corollary to this is also valid. The blind application of biblical guidelines without the accompanying love for Christ as his Lord, makes the Christian a hypocrite and he would not be sufficiently and properly motivated to sustain his efforts (Matt 23:23-28, Mk 7:6).

Given the above parameters, the thesis of this paper is that the biblical role of the Christian mother lies first and foremost in the home with her family: her husband and children; and that it is possible for the Singapore Christian mother to live out this biblical role in contemporary Singapore society.

Social Problems in Singapore Identified and Confronted

Since the early 1980s, the political leadership in Singapore has highlighted to the Singapore public the two related trends of women getting married at a later age and the fewer number of children per married woman. These were presented as social problems that must be addressed and solved. The reasons for the political leadership's concern over these trends are as follows:

1. These trends will reduce the population of Singapore and thereby reducing the already small talent pool in Singapore. This is considered a serious problem particularly for the political leadership because "Singapore, a small, barely established, nation cannot afford to have anything less than her ablest and her best, to be in charge of the government."³
2. With a smaller population comes a smaller labour force which in turn will adversely curb the growth rate of the Gross Domestic Product.
3. The smaller labour force will also cause the ratio of dependent senior citizens per working adult to increase. This is viewed as an unwelcome increased economic burden on the increasingly small labour force.

It is to be noted that the whole concern is not with the welfare of women per se but rather one of national economics and survival. The Ministry of Manpower (MOM) is focusing its attention on full-time mothers in their attempt to increase the size of the workforce. It considers that a mere 3 per cent of this group of women will boost the workforce by 40,000.⁴

The identification of the above-mentioned problems which have adverse effects on the national economy led quickly to governmental effort to solve them through a series of incentives, disincentives and sanctions. For example, in 1987 incentives included:

BIBLICAL MOTHERHOOD (I)

1. income tax deductions to educated working women whereby they can claim, in addition to the usual child deductions, a further 5 per cent of their earned salary for the first child, 10 per cent for the second child, and 15 per cent for the third child, up to a maximum of S$10,000;
2. removal of disincentives in school registration against the third child;
3. more subsidised childcare centres and encouragement of the private sector to provide this service;
4. the use of Medisave to pay delivery charges for the third child in all hospitals;
5. priority in housing allocation for owners of a three-room flat who want to get a larger apartment upon the birth of their third child.

There are also additional incentives to encourage civil servants to have bigger families which will give an example to the private employers to be “more understanding towards working mothers with young children.”⁵

In 1989, enhanced child relief for working mothers allowed them to claim an additional tax relief of 15 per cent of their earned income for the second child; 20 per cent for the third child; and 25 per cent for the fourth child up to a maximum of S$15,000; and the special tax rebate of S$20,000 was extended to those who have a fourth baby on or after January 1, 1988. In addition, working mothers may claim double tax relief for the foreign maid levy.

Another solution to the identified social problems is the setting up of the Social Development Unit (SDU) by the Ministry of Finance. By promoting social interaction among single male and female university graduates, its purpose is to hasten their decision to get married.

There is also a call by a Nominated Member of Parliament to provide pro-family policies to help families weather the pressures of an increasingly stressful society.⁶ Amongst other proposals, she calls for an Inter-Ministerial Committee on Family Development to be set up.

The Ministry of Community Development (MCD) is planning to introduce the concept of family-life ambassadors to help working parents at the workplace to pick up tips on parenting.⁷ Its Senior Parliamentary Secretary reiterates the government’s commitment to the establishment of a supportive environment to help women balance their roles in the home and at work.

In the midst of these governmental “encouragements” and the unending desire to pursue an ever increasingly affluent lifestyle, the Singapore family flows easily into the channel of dual-income families.

Social Pressures on Singapore Women

Quah⁸ notes that in this century the number of Singapore women joining the labour force is in increasing proportion. Until 1980, the pattern of their participation is one where as singles they hold jobs, and they leave their jobs (when they are in their mid-twenties) upon marriage or upon having their first child and would not enter the labour force again. This pattern, however, has been changing and did not continue into the 1990s. In the 1990s, women remain in the labour force longer and they leave their jobs at a slower rate.

The social problems and the governmental intervention to solve the problems as highlighted above lead to two basic contradictory social pressures on Singapore women. On the one hand, they are expected to be dutiful wives and good mothers and to remain in the home; on the other hand, as educated women they are expected to contribute to the economic welfare of the country as human resource is the country’s main national asset. The latter appeals to the women as holding a job fits in with their career aspiration. This is supported by Quah’s observation of the 1990s’ trend as mentioned above.

Quah also observes that in the 1990s, women are increasingly determined to handle both duties—home and job—concurrently. This situation is confirmed by the economic activity status of women and men ... There is a lower proportion of economically active women among wives, but still this proportion increased significantly, from only 14.0 per cent in 1957 to 43.2 per cent in 1990.⁹

As the number of economically active married women grows rapidly, the question of childcare comes into the picture. Working couples have to decide on the best childcare arrangement so that they can fulfil both their childcare and their career obligations. The government has to follow through their intervention programme with further incentives and programmes to make it more conducive for working mothers to remain in the labour force. The debate is not on whether working mothers should work or not because it is assumed that, for the sake of national economic prosperity, women should remain in the workforce. The issue to be considered is what childcare arrangement working couples should adopt.

BIBLICAL MOTHERHOOD (I)

In many societies, most parents would want to bring up their children on their own. Quah considered this a normal expectation or collective ideal... Yet, the demands of daily life, including the demands of earning a living, impede the realization of this ideal for an increasing number of parents today.¹⁰

The Singapore government sees the provision of childcare services as a necessary part of the national economic development plan. This is seen in the 1991 Strategic Economic Plan which says that: “The single most important factor towards achieving developed country status is enhancing Singapore’s most important resource, its people.”¹¹ This goal can be achieved by increasing the participation rate of women in the labour force as well as by increasing the retirement age of employees.

To overcome the main obstacle of childcare and household demands, and to ensure that women can remain in the workforce, policy planners considered the following three measures:

1. encourage part-time employment and job-sharing,
2. provide more childcare facilities at affordable prices (this includes employment of foreign maids), and
3. allow work to be done at home instead of quitting jobs.

Of these, policy planners felt that the most important is the availability of childcare facilities. Yet, another strategy that MOM is considering is to set up a “home-management industry to provide professionals to do household chores.”¹² It anticipates attracting 40,000 full-time mothers back into the workforce to contribute significantly to the economy.

The Biblical Relationship of Man and Woman

Before proceeding further in the examination of the role of the modern day Singapore Christian mother, it is necessary to examine what God’s Word has to say about the role relationship of men and women. This section aims therefore to look into the Bible for the roles of men and women as originally designed by God, how these roles were violated, the effect of the violation of these roles, and finally what the New Testament teaches about the role of women.

The Original God-designed Roles of Man and Woman

When God created the first man and woman, He created them in His own image (Gen 1:27). Because they share the image of God, they are both equal in God's sight in terms of their worth. Man and woman are therefore to have respect one for the other.

In instructing the first man and woman to have dominion over the rest of His creatures (Gen 1:26), God is giving them equal responsibility to rule over the other creatures. They are both equal in God's sight in terms of their responsibility.

It is to be noted, however, that in creating the first woman, God's intention was to give to man a "help meet for him" (Gen 2:18). That is, the woman's role is that of suitably helping or assisting man. There are two implications here. Implied in this suitability is the equality of woman to man, an equality that other creatures could not have. And implied in the assistance of woman to man is the headship of man over woman. While they have similar authority over the creatures, the relationship between the man and the woman is one where the man is head over the woman. This implies that the woman is subject to the man. Their equality of worth and responsibility therefore comes with differing roles and differing functions. Man takes on the headship role while woman takes on the subject role. Accordingly, man performs certain functions that go with his headship role while woman performs those functions that come with her subject role. The functions of man and woman, although different, are equally important in God's sight since they are both made in the image of God.

There is no hint of inferiority in the God-given role of the woman as a "help" because it is a help that is to be suitable for the man or corresponding to the man. Even God Himself has taken on the role of a helper: "Thou art my help and my deliverer" (Ps 40:17), "The Lord is my helper" (Heb 13:6). As our Helper, God is showing us His desire to aid us and to provide for our needs. This is because He loves us. There is nothing demeaning in being a helper.

The first man in Genesis 2:23 calls the first woman "bone of my bones, and flesh of my flesh." He views woman with honour and respect. Implied in his view also is his love and care for her. Genesis 2:24 says that they "shall be one flesh" indicating the equal status that woman shall have with man.

In God's original design, man and woman are equal yet they play different roles. Man is to relate to woman with honour and respect and view her as his equal. His relationship with her is a caring and loving one. Woman, as his equal, is to function alongside and assist man with an acceptance of his caring and loving leadership over her. These are the original God-designed roles of man and woman as revealed to us in Genesis 1 and 2.

The Effect of Violation of These Roles

Genesis 3 records the temptation of Eve by Satan that leads to the fall of Adam and his posterity. An analysis of the strategy used by Satan reveals that Satan was targeting not so much at Eve but rather

Adam's headship as the one ordained by God ... Satan's subtlety is that he knew the created order God had ordained for the good of the family, and he deliberately defied it by ignoring the man and taking up his dealings with the woman. Satan put her in the position of spokesman, leader, and defender.¹³

Eve allowed herself to take on the Satan-assigned role of being the leader and left the God-designed role. Adam failed to play his God-given role and instead went along with Eve. As a result, they opened themselves to sin and they actually fell into sin. Thus, it can be seen that when the God-designed role of man being the leader and woman being the suitable helper is violated, destruction comes in.

When they disobeyed by eating the fruit from the tree of the knowledge of good and evil, their relationship with each other was affected. First, God says to Eve in Genesis 3:16 that "thy desire shall be to thy husband." In relating to her husband, Eve's desire now will no longer be to assist him suitably but her sin has resulted in this desire to want to control¹⁴ her husband. She now has the desire to want to usurp her husband's God-given role of being the head of the home.

Second, God says to Eve in Genesis 3:16 that "he shall rule over thee." Adam's headship over her, tainted by sin, will no longer be a loving and caring one, but his heart tendency is to want to "rule" over her. He will not want to relate to her as his equal with honour and respect but as a subject to be ruled or bossed over.

Henceforth, the role relationship between man and woman is filled with strife and enmity. There will be a constant struggle between man and woman.

New Testament Teachings on the Role of Women

Although sin has affected the way man and woman relate to each other, the original God-intended equal-yet-different roles before the fall of man as taught in Genesis are reinforced in the New Testament. Those God-given roles have not been done away with.

Paul in Galatians 3:28 says, “there is neither male nor female; for ye are all one in Christ Jesus.” This is an affirmation of the equality of man and woman in God’s sight in terms of their worth. Peter in 1 Peter 3:7 exhorts husbands to “dwell with them according to knowledge, giving honour unto the wife, as unto the weaker vessel and as being heirs together of the grace of life.” Relating to their wives as joint-heirs “of the grace of life” indicates a spiritual equality: men are to relate to their wives as equal spiritual partners.

However, in the light of the presence of the sin-caused heart tendencies in man and woman, it is extremely difficult for man and woman to achieve what God has originally intended for them. The sinful tendencies in man lead him, as head and leader, to want to dominate and rule the woman selfishly with an iron fist. At the same time, the sinful tendencies in woman lead her, “a help meet for him” (Gen 2:18), to resent the God-given role of being under the authority of man. She will want to avoid being under his authority by getting herself into the position of headship or leadership. If under his authority, she will want to rebel or to undermine his authority.

Knowing this sinful condition of man and woman, God has in the New Testament given instructions as to how man and woman can overcome those sin-caused heart tendencies in order to enable them to perform the roles that God has originally given to them.

For woman to be able to perform her God-intended role, Paul in Ephesians 5:22 instructs wives to “submit yourselves unto your own husbands, as unto the Lord.” The attitude of submission is a quality that is necessary for woman to have being one who is to be a “help meet” for the man. Paul sees the need to repeat this instruction to be submissive in Colossians 3:18. And Peter echoes this in 1 Peter 3:1 where he says that wives are to be in “subjection” to their husbands.

Being in subjection does not put one in an inferior position. Such subjection or subordination is seen in the Trinity. Jesus Christ is equal to God the Father yet He subjected Himself to the Father and obeyed His Father (Phil 2:6-8). Such subjection among equals is also required among Christians (Eph 5:21) who are brothers and sisters in Christ, equal in the sight of God.

BIBLICAL MOTHERHOOD (I)

Being in subjection does not only not put one in an inferior position, sometimes the situation requires that one be in subjection to somebody who is actually inferior to oneself. Jesus Himself demonstrated this in Matthew 27:11-14 when He subjected Himself to the worldly authority of Governor Pontius Pilate.

The instruction to the woman to be in submission to man does not tell us anything about the status of the man and the woman. It does not automatically put the woman in an inferior position.

The attitude of submission goes hand in hand with the attitude of obedience. Paul therefore instructs wives to be “obedient to their own husbands” (Tit 2:5). This obedience of the wife to the husband is described in Ephesians 5:22 as “unto the Lord” and in Colossians 3:18 as “fit for the Lord.” The woman knows that her Lord loves her and that He has her best interest at heart. She therefore obeys Him knowing that His instructions are always good for her. Her obedience to her husband is matched with her obedience to her Lord. This implies that she is to think of her husband as equally loving and caring as her Lord and having her interest and welfare at heart. She is therefore to obey him the way she would her Lord.

The accompanying attitude to this obedience is described in Ephesians 5:33 as a reverential one. She is to obey with respect. 1 Peter 3:4 describes it as a “gentle and quiet spirit.” The obedience that God demands of the wife is one that is sincere and from the heart. Obedience, whether to the Lord or to the husband, is called for merely because the instruction comes from one who is one’s Lord or husband. It is still called for even if there is no understanding of the instruction. She is to obey gently and quietly. The only implied exception is when the instruction from the husband is against God’s instruction. Only then, can the wife choose to disobey her husband and obey Her Lord instead.

There are also instructions in the New Testament for sinful man as to how he is to carry out his God-given headship role to complement the God-given submission role of the woman. Husbands are to love their wives and “be not bitter against them” (Col 3:19). Not to be bitter means to love and to care. So, here in the same verse, Paul is instructing the man to love and to care for his wife. The emphasis is that man must always convey his love and care to his wife so explicitly and clearly that his wife has no doubt that he loves her.

Ephesians 5:25 and 29 elaborate on this love of the man for his wife. His love for her is compared to Christ's love for the Church. It is a sacrificial love, a love that leads him to be willing to give of himself for her. Loving her in this way means that the man is to think of the good of his wife, to be considerate of her needs and be willing to provide for her needs accordingly, even to the extent of inconveniencing himself. In addition to this, the man who loves his wife is to "nourisheth and cherisheth" her the way the Lord nourishes and cherishes the Church. The Lord nourishes the Church by providing spiritual food to ensure that she grows spiritually. Similarly, the man is to love his wife to the extent that he does not merely maintain or satisfy her needs but also develop her and help her grow in her role as an "help meet for him."

1 Peter 3:7 teaches that husbands are to live with their wives "according to knowledge." The man who loves his wife will want to know his wife very well, including her likes, dislikes, desires, fears, strengths, weaknesses, etc. His love for her will compel him to want to know and therefore understand his wife as fully as possible.

The same verse goes on to say that the man must give "honour unto the wife." This implies that he loves her by respecting her. He will not shame her but rather give her praise and honour as his wife and his children's mother.

These teachings in the New Testament on the role relationship of the man and his wife show that in spite of the fall and the change in the way man and woman relate to each other, God's original intention concerning the roles of man and woman has not changed. He still wants man to relate to woman with love, honour and respect as his equal and for woman to accept and submit to the loving and caring headship and leadership of man by suitably assisting him. These two roles must be equally emphasised and carried out in order that both man and woman can truly succeed in performing their God-given roles.

The man cannot fully succeed in his role without the woman succeeding in hers, and vice versa. As mental assent to these God-given roles do not guarantee the actual fruition of the God-given role relationship between man and woman, there is a need to constantly focus on the roles of both man and woman and to consider how they can be manifested in everyday living. The mental assent must give rise to an endeavour to follow the instructions given in the New Testament so that the sinful tendencies of the heart may be overcome.

Notes

¹ Halimah Yacob, "Start Valuing Workers as Human Beings," The Straits Times, 19 February 2000, 69.

² Geraldine Yeo, "Family an Important Issue for Accidental Feminist," The Sunday Times, 2 April 2000, 42.

³ Lee Kuan Yew, "The Search for Talent," in Our Heritage and Beyond: A Collection of Essays on Singapore, Its Past, Present and Future, ed S Jayakumar (Singapore: Singapore National Trades Union Congress, 1982), 8.

⁴ Irene Ng, "MOM Wants Moms Back in Workforce," The Sunday Times, 12 March 2000, 31.

⁵ Goh Chok Tong, "New Population Policy," Speeches, March-April 1987, 11:3.

⁶ Tee Hun Ching, "Family Development: I Want to Ask for a Bit More," The Straits Times, 10 March 2000, Life Section, 2.

⁷ Laurel Teo, "Parenting Tips Brought Right to Your Office," The Straits Times, 13 March 2000, 41.

⁸ Stella Quah, Family in Singapore: Sociological Aspects (Singapore: Times Academic Press, 1998), 46.

⁹ Ibid, 48.

¹⁰ Ibid, 123.

¹¹ Economic Planning Committee, Towards a Developed Nation. The Strategic Economic Plan (Singapore: Ministry of Trade and Industry, 1991), 7.

¹² Ng, "MOM Wants Moms," 31.

This article is first in a series of three on "The Role of Christian Mothers in Contemporary Singapore Society in the Light of Proverbs 31:10-31." Carol Lee is in the full-time staff of Calvary Bible-Presbyterian Church (Jurong). She also lectures in the area of Christian Education at Far Eastern Bible College.

HOW GOD LED A CHINESE GIRL THROUGH INDONESIA'S RIOTING

Linda Liejardi

I can still remember the event that rocked Jakarta, Indonesia in June 1998. It was four o'clock in the morning when my mother woke me and my brother up. She said the mob was coming to our block of houses. Knowing that this mob would kill, rob and rape, I was very afraid. My heart had never throbbed so fast. My father shouted from downstairs. He told us to pack clothes in case they came to our home. We planned to escape and save our lives. But we knew to run away from that mob was quite impossible. There were hundreds of them. In obedience to my father, I only chose one T-shirt and put it into a paper bag. While everyone was hurrying to pack their clothes my father was asking our neighbours about those people. What I could do was only sit on my bed and pray God to save us. As I was praying earnestly with a fearful heart, my tears rolled down my cheeks, and I said to God, "God, thou knowest the language of tears. Please answer my prayer and save us, Lord." I turned on my tape recorder to listen to my favourite Christian song in Indonesian. I was so afraid that I could not think clearly. I turned it on so loud that my mother had to ask me to lower the volume.

About twenty minutes had passed, and I did not hear any sound of their coming. My father said that most probably those people had gone away in the other direction. When I heard that, I was very glad, but I forgot to thank the Lord.

This was not the last, for those people still rioted everywhere that nobody dared to go out of their houses. Feeling that the situation was not getting better, my father sent me to take refuge in Hong Kong. So I went there for two weeks.

After coming back to Jakarta, I should continue my study and finish it. But because everybody was saying that on National Day August 17, the situation would be much worse than ever before, my parents were very worried because I am a girl. Then suddenly my mother remembered the place where she had studied theology. My mother called the Principal of Far Eastern Bible College (FEBC)—Rev Timothy Tow—in Singapore. Thank the Lord, Rev Tow welcomed me to come and stay, and to study at FEBC. When I heard that, my heart was very glad, not like when I went to Hong Kong. So in July 1998, two weeks before classes began, I flew to Singapore. When my mother and I arrived at FEBC, I saw the palm trees and I felt very much at home.

HOW GOD LED A CHINESE GIRL THROUGH INDONESIA'S RIOTING

So I joined the classes and studied like others. But one time during the class, one lecturer said that we had better make sure of our calling and serve God full-time. At that time, I was so troubled because I knew that I was not called to full-time ministry. So I cried most of the nights and I just could not see that God had led me here. I thought that I was here by chance. There was nothing to do with God's sovereignty. As I had studied in FEBC for one semester already, I started to feel settled here. I began to see how God really led me to FEBC. He had a plan which I believe is wonderful for me though I still did not understand it fully.

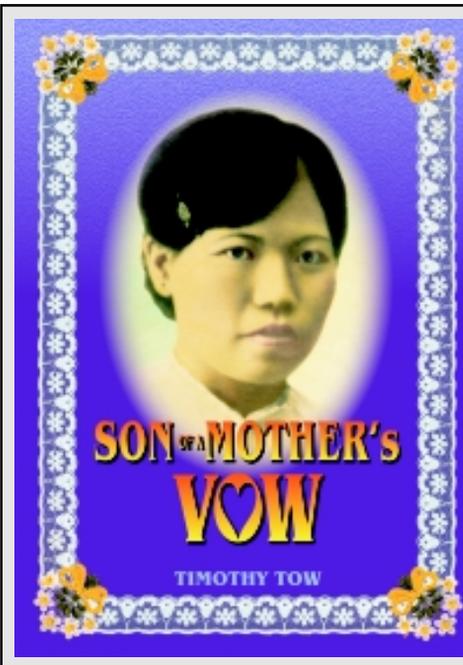

I took the course on Missions. One time, something in my heart troubled me. I wished I could go to the mission field to serve God as a missionary. I wanted to reach those people in Buddhist or Muslim countries. I thought that God must have brought me to FEBC to call me to be a missionary. So I was zealous to seek for an opportunity to go to any mission field. Thank God, I heard that there would be a mission trip led by Rev Tow to Cambodia. I asked for permission to go to Cambodia from my parents, and they allowed me, knowing that Mrs Tow was going too. To make it brief, I felt very happy with my trip. I enjoyed it so much that I wanted to go again and help our missionaries there in any way. I prayed hard every night. I said to the Lord that if it was His will for me to be a missionary, then open the way for me to go to Cambodia again.

The chance never came, but it was replaced by a call from my mother. She said that our application to the States had been approved. When I received the news, I became very confused and troubled. I thought I was called to full-time service, but how could the Lord open the way to go to the States? I asked the Lord to show me His will. I cried and shared with one of the sisters in the dorm, and she said maybe God had another plan for me.

I tried to understand God's plan for my life. I talked with other sisters and brothers about this, and they suggested that I pray hard and seek His will. Some of them said though I might not be called to full-time service, I could still serve the Lord in the States. After I heard that, my eyes were opened. I could see the light. My heart was no more troubled. I began to accept this as God's leading.

Honestly, I am very blessed by the course on Theism. We studied the Seven-fold Will of God. Now I can really understand the will of God for my life. I believe that under His directive will, He will lead me to fulfil whatever plan He has for me. I understand also that everything happening to me is under His decretive will. He has planned everything for me. I just have to obey and trust Him to lead me. I believe that when I grow older, I will be able to see how wonderful God has led me throughout my life, and I will say, "Thank you, Lord, for leading my life thus far, that now I can see your wonderful work in my life."

Linda Liejardi graduated with a Certificate of Religious Knowledge from Far Eastern Bible College, May 14, 2000.

"WHY OF ALL her children did Mother offer me to the Lord? Three years after Mother was married she gave birth to Sister. This did not fulfil the hopes of the Tow Clan, as everyone in the old Chinese tradition expected a boy, and that usually within the first year. When it took another three years before my arrival, Mother had become anxious. Like Hannah in bitterness vowing to the Lord, Mother had vowed the same vow, that should He grant His handmaid a man-child, 'then I will give him unto the Lord all the days of his life' (1 Sam 1:10-11)." Don't miss this exciting story of God's work in the life of Rev Dr Timothy Tow—founder of the Bible-Presbyterian movement in Singapore (ISBN 981-04-2907-X).

FEBC BOOKROOM

Tel: 254-9188, Fax: 250-6955
febcbkrm@singnet.com.sg

College News

The new college term opened on July 17, 2000 with a day of prayer and registration. Twenty-three new students joined the college family: Karuna Sithisakthanakul, Thailand; Wasana Ruengviriyakul, Thailand; Daniel Chew, Canada; Nguyen Gia Hien, Vietnam; Jun Joo Young, Korea; Mrs Choi-Back Hae Sook, Korea; Ezer Yoon, Korea; Kim Young Min, Korea; Lee Hyun Sook, Korea; Lee Seung Il, Korea; Jeon Chang Gil, Korea; Kim Byeong Suk, Korea; Roth Kim Nang, Cambodia; Reggor Barazon Galarpe, Philippines; Johnyanto, Indonesia; Wiwin Sunarto, Indonesia; Joanna Lim Meei Yi, Singapore; Peck Choon Khim, Singapore; Charlene Tan Hwee Phio, Singapore; Wendy Teng Siew Lay, Singapore; Yap Yee Kin, Singapore; Hannah Yeo, Singapore; Mary Chua, Singapore. Total enrolment now stands at 108, from 17 countries: Indonesia, Philippines, Cambodia, Thailand, Korea, USA, Kenya, Canada, Ethiopia, Ghana, Australia, Malaysia, India, Vietnam, Nepal, Myanmar and Singapore.

Four evening courses were conducted for the July-November semester: (1) Soteriology by Dr Timothy Tow, (2) Baby Greek by Dr Jeffrey Khoo, (3) Daniel by Rev Quek Suan Yew, and (4) Family Life by Dr Goh Seng Fong. These classes have attracted over 200 lay students.

The 25th Graduation Exercises held in Life Bible-Presbyterian Church on May 14, 2000 saw a total of 33 receiving their diplomas: Certificate of Religious Knowledge (CertRK): Anne Chiam, Linda Liejardi, Penpim Sanmeuang, Jonathan Tow Shen Han; Certificate of Biblical Studies (CertBS): Lim Poh Choo, Violet Quek Lay Eng, Tan Lai Huat, George Jhoon Tang Fook Kee, Thang Vel Kam, Tran Thi Thien Thanh; Diploma in Theology (DipTh): Chadarat Chaikor, Choi Hyun Sun, Daniel Lim Hoe Chiang, Rosianna Sirait; Bachelor of Religious Education (BRE): Samuel Kunjumone, Lee Byong Sang, Park Seung Kyu, Teo Yock Kui, Asaria Asa Timarong; Bachelor of Theology (BTh): Chiang Mui Leng, Esther Chew Siew Lan, Jang Sae Kwang, Arthur Koh Tze Kiat, Leonard Munyambu Musyoka, Robert Peh Tan Yeow, David Weng Chih Jen; Master of Religious Education (MRE): Ahn Jung Kee, Ellyzabeth, Shim Eun Ju; Master of Divinity (MDiv): Carol Lee Foong Leng, Calvin Loh Kok

Howe, Stephen Kavita Masila, Tran Thanh Minh. Dr S H Tow—senior pastor of Calvary Bible-Presbyterian Church—was the honoured speaker for the occasion.

The First FEBC Alumni Night and Dinner was held on July 14, 2000 at the Corpthorne King’s Hotel, Singapore. Dr Bob Phee presented a slide show on the history of the college. The 70 who attended enjoyed a night of warm fellowship and remembrance.

The FEBC Gospel Rally was held on September 30, 2000. Rev Jack Sin—lecturer in Church History and pastor of Maranatha Bible-Presbyterian Church—spoke on “The Answer to Emptiness in Life.”

Class Notes

Dr Goh Seng Fong (CertBS ’72), spent a two-week teaching stint last July at the Bible College of East Africa, Kenya.

Rev Yap Beng Shin (BTh ’80), pastor of Olivet Bible-Presbyterian Church, has completed his Master of Divinity studies at Temple Baptist Seminary, USA.

Rev Chang Chian Hui (BTh ’89) is the director of Ling Kwang Youth Centre. His address: 346, Ang Mo Kio Ave 3, #01-2280, Singapore 560346. E-mail: lkyouth@pacific.net.sg.

Shirley Liem (DipTh ’89) is serving in Macau under the Mennonite Church. She is ministering to the children of prisoners from Mainland China.

Dr Jeffrey Khoo (BTh ’89) spoke at the first anniversary thanksgiving service (Sep 3, 2000) of Faith Presbyterian Church pastored by Rev Errol Stone (BTh ’98). He also conducted a two-day seminar on Charismatism to church members, and students of the Aboriginal Evangelical Bible College. In November, he presented a paper—“Dispensational Premillennialism in Reformed Theology”—at the 52nd Annual Meeting of the Evangelical Theological Society, in Nashville, Tennessee.

Rev Willy Ng (BTh ’91) has resigned as assistant pastor of Grace Bible-Presbyterian Church on August 17, 2000 to start a new ministry called Criswell Tabernacle.

Rev Wee Eng Moh (BTh '92) is now pastor of Berith Bible-Presbyterian Church meeting at Changi Conference Centre (Salvation Army), 7 Upper Changi Road North.

Prateep Cheepnirand (BTh '92, MDiv '96) and his wife Young Hee (CertBS '98) have started the Lanna Youth Development Centre, Chiangmai, Thailand, in January 2000. Their address: 141/1 Moo 2 T Tawangtal, A Sarapi, Chiangmai 50140, Thailand. E-mail: ydc@loxinfo.co.th.

Rev Hpung Raw Hpung Seng (MRE '96) is vice-principal of Putao Bible College in Kachin State, Myanmar.

Rev Jack Sin (MDiv '96) conducted two Church History courses to the Master of Ministry students of Far Eastern Fundamental School of Theology, Yangon, Myanmar, last December.

Ester Limin (CertBS '96) graduated with a Bachelor of Theology from Singapore Bible College on May 12, 2000.

Lazum Lonewah (BTh '96) and Kim Jae Eun (BTh '96) were joined in holy matrimony on June 24, 2000 in San Jose, California. Their address: 9 Northcrest Drive, South San Francisco, CA 94080, USA.

Yusniar L (DipTh '96) writes the editor: "I have read The Burning Bush through and am very much blessed by it. Thank God for all writers who have dedicated their lives for God's work through literature. It is truly a great blessing for those who have no such ability. I learn a lot from it. I pray that God will raise many more writers of the fundamental doctrine of the Bible in the future. Enclosed is $50 as a token of thanksgiving." Her new address: Jl Kelapa Dua Wetan V No 66, Rt 008/01, Ciracas, Jakarta-Timur 13730, Indonesia.

Rev Lim Jit Thye (BTh '96) is now pastor of the historic Trinity Presbyterian Church in Muar, Malaysia.

Sam Lovelyson (DipTh '97, BTh '99) has started the Ekkala Satham (Trumpet Sound) Radio Ministry in India, with the support of Gospel Light Bible-Presbyterian Church (Rev Cheong Chin Meng, BTh '89). He also publishes a bi-monthly magazine, and runs an English school for poor children. His address: Gospel Light B-P Ministries, Christ Bhavan, Mathoor, Aruvikarai DT, Tamil Nadu, S India 629177. E-mail: lovelee@md4.vsnl.net.in.

Daniel Lim (DipTh '00) is director of the House of Hope, a Christian drug rehabilitation centre, in Cebu, Philippines.

Rev Stephen Masila (BTh '83, MDiv '00) is the academic dean of the Bible College of East Africa, Kenya. He is also in charge of the Kishwahili Service.

Asa Timarong (BRE '00) is now pastor of the Palau Evangelical Church at Ngiwal village. His address: Palau Evangelical Church, PO Box 1137 Republic of Palau 96940.

Rev Park Seung Kyu (BRE '00) is a doctoral student of Kyung Hee University in Korea, and serving at Suyu Glory Bible-Presbyterian Church in Seoul. His e-mail: hemosu@hotmail.com.

David Weng (BTh '00) is a staffworker of Maranatha Bible-Presbyterian Church focusing on Chinese ministries.

Robert Peh (BTh '00) and his wife Chadarat (DipTh) are missionaries of Maranatha Bible-Presbyterian Church. They are working among the Lahu people of Northern Thailand. Their address: 112 Sridonchai Road, Muang 50100, Chiangmai, Thailand; e-mail: evangelpeh@hotmail.com.

Jang Sae Kwang (BTh '00) is a Master of Divinity student at Pensacola Theological Seminary, USA. His address: PCC Box 1144, 250 Brent Lane, Pensacola, FL 32503, USA; e-mail: saekwangjang@students.pcci.edu.

Calvin Loh (MDiv '00) has been appointed a preacher of the Chinese congregation of Life Bible-Presbyterian Church.

Carol Lee (MDiv '00) is a full-time worker of Calvary Bible-Presbyterian Church in Jurong, and will lecture in Christian Education at FEBC starting January 2001. Besides her MDiv, Carol holds a BBA from the University of Singapore, and MEd from the University of Keele (UK).

Joshua Pinto (CertBS) is in charge of a new Helping Hand ministry to drug addicts in Batam, Indonesia, called Uluran Tangan. His address: Central Batam Block D-19, Citra Batam; e-mail: pintobtm@indosat.net.id.

Far Eastern Bible College

25th Graduation Exercises

May 14, 2000

